THE UNION PACIFIC.

What the Present Railroad Mystery Means.

What Touzalin, of the C., B. and N., Was "Bridal" Touring Here For.

Probability That the U. P. and the C., B. and Q. Will Hitch,

And Push from Ogden to San Francisco and Los Angeles—A Threatened Transcontinental Competitor of the Santa Fe Route —Some Inside History.

That there is something big in the railroad wind is evident even to the uninitiated. The very reporters of the daily Blunderer have discovered that much, and are filling their confiding columns with the thinnest porcine-ablution ever dished up under the head of railroad "news." Their rumors would do credit to the most hopeless inmate of an imbecile asylum; for the more impossible the report the more fondly do they hug it. The acme of all possible blunders did not stagger them, and they have soberly (maybe) announced that Jay Gould has bought Rattlesnake Island for all sorts of absurd sums for the Union Pacific. The fact that Jay Gould has nothing to do with the Union Pacific, and that he has no more possible use for Rattlesnake Island than a dog has for two tails, does not even make them blush. This is only a sample imbecility. The latest is the grave editorial announcement yesterday that "it is given out on what seems good authority that the Carson and Colorado Railroad will in no long time be running its trains into this city." Ah, there! The only basis for this ridiculous statement is the letter, printed in yesterday's TIMES, to the effect that the request of our Board of Trade to the Carson and Colorado to come to Mojave —not here—will soon be taken under consideration by one of the owners! The proposition that this narrow-gauge should run its trains into this city has never been even hinted at.

But there is something in the air; and, first as always in the presentation of real railroad news, THE TIMES gives this morning exclusive information of what the something probably is. It is no reportorial guesswork, but the studied conclusion of one of the longest-headed and best informed railroad magnates west of the Missouri.

It will be remembered that last fall A. E. Touzalin, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Northern Railroad, came to this city in his private car, ostensibly on his bridal tour, his wife being a daughter of one of the Supreme Judges of the United States. Touzalin's car was less private than his whereabouts. The former laid here some months; the latter was an unknown quantity. Neither railroad men nor reporters could find hoof or hide of him. It was given out that after a day or so here, during which no one saw him, he took his wife to Santa Barbara, and that they passed their honeymoon there. Inquiry at Santa Barbara, however, failed to unearth him, it being reported there that he was in Los Angeles. The fact that he had been married several months before he came out here at all, rather sapped the poetry from the honeymoon story; and the fact that while alleged to be in Santa Barbara, he was really nowhere discoverable by parties camping on his trail, set the knowing ones to thinking. After investigation it was decided that he had gone to Salt Lake City across the desert. Why? To elucidate, it is necessary to go back a little.

Touzalin has not always been a Chicago, Burlington and Northern man. In fact, two years ago, or such a matter, he was second vice-president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé. He is a schemer, and President Strong did not like his style, so Br'er Touzalin had to go. He transferred his heart and hand to the Chicago, Burlington and Northern, built a new road, and made a million. He still finds time, however, to cherish a heartfelt hatred of President Strong, and of everything connected with the Santa Fé route. Any time that he can turn his little tomahawk against the ribs of the Railway Giant, it is safe to stake your brogans that he will do it.

Well, Touzalin came out here, took to the solitudes and investigated the country between here and Salt Lake. Then he went back East. Directly, Tom Potter, the famous vice-president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, resigned that position and went over to the Union Pacific. This was a "paralyzer" to the railroad world, and was so palpably in furtherance of some gigantic scheme that the railroad world has ever since been trying to guess what the scheme may be. Some of the best reckoners hit it at once. "You will see," said they, "that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy will absorb the Union Pacific." This has been fully set forth in the telegraphic columns of THE TIMES; and that it is correct there can be little doubt.

The Santa Fé is now building a superb line to Chicago, thus making its eastern terminal Chicago instead of Kansas City. President Strong lives in Boston; First Vice-President C. W. Smith, having discarded the general managership, takes up his headquarters in Chicago; General Manager Goddard is stationed at Topeka; and they make a triumvirate against whose energy and brains few railroad combinations can successfully "buck."

Under this complexion of things the Union Pacific will naturally have to get to Chicago. This necessary outlet the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy can give it. The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, on the other hand, which is one of the railway giants, wants to get to the Pacific coast. If THE TIMES is not mistaken, Touzalin's mysterious visit and Potter's apparent transfer of his affections are parts of a gigantic scheme to satisfy these two thirsts out of the same bucket. First thing the public knows the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy will have absorbed the Union Pacific by some such process as that by which the Southern Pacific has swallowed the Central Pacific, by lease, directory-juggling, or some other of the many expedients so facile to the railroad diplomat. The next move will be to push a line from Ogden to the coast—to San Francisco or Los Angeles, and probably to both.

Readers of THE TIMES are more or less familiar with the Utah Central Railroad, a Union Pacific line which runs down from Ogden, through Salt Lake City to Frisco—that is, from nearly the extreme north of Utah to within 100 miles of its extreme south. At the mining camp of Frisco it runs into a hole; but it can get out and come south by branching a little north of Frisco. This camp is but 280 miles from here; and Los Angeles is the manifest ultimate terminus of the Utah Central. With such a rudder as Tom Potter, and such a pecuniary wind as the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy can raise, the Union Pacific will have little difficulty in drifting into this southern port. There are other big deals in this connection, of which THE TIMES is apprised, but which it is not now at liberty to make public. They will all come out in due time, and this paper will be the first to publish them.

SPIKES.

W. E. Haim, of the auditor's office of the California Central at San Bernardino, is in the city on business.

Conductor G. H. Nolton has been appointed ticket agent at the Downey-avenue station of the California Central.

When THE TIMES published yesterday the roster of newly-appointed California Central officials for this city, the freight agent had not been decided upon. He was appointed yesterday, and is T. F. O'Reilly, who has heretofore been stationed at Downey avenue.

Beginning day after tomorrow, General Freight and Passenger Agent Wilkins will run Sunday excursions to Oceanside from San Bernardino, Colton, Riverside and San Diego.

Work on First street is going on at a rate which astonishes the natives. The street-car spur, from First street, is laid, so that cars will run today, from the corner of Spring and First streets, clear to the California Central depot. The plank sidewalk, from the depot to First street, will also be completed this morning.

BASE-BALL.

Two Sensational Games on the Programme.

Everything is booming for the game tomorrow between the married and the unmarried business men, for the benefit of Mrs. Watson's Home for Stray Girls. Tickets are selling rapidly, and there will be an enormous crowd.

POLICE VS. CONSTABLES.

The base-ball sharps of the police force and the champion ball-twirlers of the constabulary, of this city, have gone into the practice field, and, from all accounts, the contest will be for blood or broken fingers. Both sides are confident of success, and the captains of the official nines stand ready to bet all they are worth on the success of their particular sides.

In conversation with a TIMES reporter yesterday Capt. Ed Smith, of the Constable nine, said:

"We will win that game as sure as the sun rises. Yes, the other fellows will play well, but we have got the best nine, you bet."

Capt. A. C. Clarke, of the police force, is also positive of success. He said:

"Why, there is no doubt who will win the game. We have some good players, and they will make things very lively for the Constable nine."

In answer to the constables' challenge, which was published in yesterday's TIMES, Capt. Clarke issued the following acceptance yesterday:

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—In answer to the bold defi of the Los Angeles constabulary in the Los Angeles papers of yesterday, we, the members of the Los Angeles police force, desire to say that we accept with alacrity the aforesaid challenge, and will take great pleasure in teaching the constables of Los Angeles county how to play ball on Saturday, June 18, 1887.

MISTHER MOONEY.

He Leaves for New Fields—His Abandoned Family.

Readers of THE TIMES are more or less familiar with the unsavory pranks of B. C. Mooney, a big ex-policeman of San Francisco, who came here with another man's wife—as exclusively noted by this paper—and has been in hot water ever since. Since he was "fired" from his last position this week he has left the town. The following, from the San Francisco Post of the 23d of May, carries the story a little farther:

"James Reed, superintendent of the Youths' Directory, will make application in the Probate Court tomorrow to obtain letters of guardianship over Robert E., Mary Agnes, Henry and Clara Mooney, the children of ex-Policeman B. C. Mooney, who deserted his wife and family about a year ago. Mooney ran away to Los Angeles with another man's wife, and left his family in a rather destitute condition. His wife attempted to drown her sorrows in drink, and about two months ago died in the City Receiving Hospital from an overdose of opium, taken by her while under the influence of liquor. Since her death the children have been living with friends, who are too poor to care for them until they are able to work for themselves. It is understood that Mooney is in the city, and the directors of the Youths' Directory will endeavor to secure control of the unfortunate children, as their father is not a fit guardian for them."

IN EXTREMIS.

The Burned Woman Not Expected to Recover.

Mrs. Clark, the laundry woman at the Belmont Hotel, who was so badly burned a week ago last Wednesday, is in a very bad condition, and her recovery is considered extremely doubtful. At the time she was injured she was cleaning a stove with a cloth saturated with kerosene, when it caught fire. She threw it on the ground, and attempted to stamp it out. Her clothing caught fire, with fearful result. Her screams brought one of the waiter boys, who threw a blanket around her, and succeeded in smothering the flames, but not before the woman was terribly burned on various parts of her body. Her lower limbs were somewhat scorched, but the worst injuries were upon her arms and hand, which were literally cooked, in some places to the bone. She was also badly burned about the face, and her hair burned off. Medical aid was summoned, and the woman has had the best of attention, but, though a very strong woman, her blood was in bad condition, and the doctor fears blood-poisoning. The burned flesh on her arms and face is sloughing off very much, and the doctor thinks that, even if her life could be saved, her arms would have to be amputated. It is a fearful case. Dr. Utley, the attending physician, says it is the worst he has ever seen.

FOR DEFENDANT.

The Hall-Perret Suit Brought to an End.

The case of Hall et al. vs. Perret et al., which has been on trial before Judge O'Melveny for a week past, was brought to a close yesterday. It was a suit by plaintiff to set aside a deed to property, corner of Spring and Third streets. Mrs. Hall is the daughter of Mrs. Foster, a Mexican woman, now deceased, who formerly owned the property in dispute. Perret married a grand-daughter of Mrs. Foster, and she lived with or near them. Mrs. Hall lived in Oregon. On the 23d of last July Mrs. Hall made a deed of the property to Perret and one Cota, which cut Mrs. Hall off with nothing. Cota compromised the matter, but Perret would not do so, and the result was the suit. A good deal of interest has been manifested in the case. Able counsel approved, and forty witnesses were examined. Judge O'Melveny delivered a lengthy verbal opinion, occupying three-quarters of an hour, wherein he reviewed the testimony presented, and scored some of the witnesses pretty severely, without mentioning names. His opinion was that plaintiff had not made out a case strong enough to justify setting aside the deed, and judgment was accordingly rendered for defendants. The amount involved in the suit was about $40,000.

OUR SCHOOLS.

Superintendent Friesner on Their Needs.

The City's Magical Growth Cramping Them Seriously.

The Crying Necessity for More Accommodations at Once.

An Intelligent View of the Situation, in Which Every Parent in the City Is Directly Interested—Some Sensible Suggestions.

The State of California likes to be credited as the most liberal and enterprising commonwealth in the country. Southern California likes to be looked upon as the biggest part of the State in these two particulars, and Los Angeles claims to lead this part of the State. This claim is based upon very good grounds in some, if not in all respects, when everything is considered. The public school system of California ranks among the highest in the Union, but Los Angeles is behind all the other cities of the State, so far, in the accommodations offered for the school children, and probably so in the matter of salaries paid. The writer has been in the main cities, San Francisco, San José, Stockton and Oakland, and so far as his observation goes, their buildings are superior to those here. Of course the great influx of people to this city will account for this in part, and yet a city of this size ought to have school buildings to show that will be a credit to the enterprise and liberality of its citizens. The people will soon be called upon to act by the ballot-box upon the question of affording increased and better accommodations than the school department now possesses. It may be that all are not aware of the present condition of the schools, and yesterday a TIMES reporter called upon W. M. Friesner, City Superintendent, to learn how things are at present being conducted, what is needed, and why it is needed.

"Mr. Friesner," said the scribe, "the Board of Education has asked the City Council to take steps for the purpose of securing $100,000 for school purposes. It is probable that citizens who will be called upon to vote on this measure would like to know for what it will be used, and the reasons why it is desired. What can you say by way of information?"

"Well, sir, we need more school-rooms, and the $100,000 that we ask for is to be used in building and furnishing about thirty such, for the use of the department. At present we are conducting eighteen half-sessions daily, on account of lack of room. Last year we increased the seating capacity by twelve additional rooms. We need today eighteen more rooms than we now have, and if the ratio of increase continues next year as it has during the last, we shall need thirty rooms more than we have at present to accommodate the pupils. There is no reason to suppose that the ratio of increased attendance will decline, but rather that it will be higher the next year than the last. We have received 306 new pupils into the schools during the month of May just passed, with really no place for them."

"What is the condition of the buildings that you now have?"

"We have, in the yard of the Spring-street school, two shanties built of upright boards which afford partial protection from the weather to teachers and children. Two or three of the other buildings are so old and rickety that they must soon be (ought to be now) torn down and new ones erected. They are too old to pay for repairing them. The city has never incurred any debt before on account of the schools. This will be the first time it has been called upon to do so, and surely the cause is a good one, in which all are equally interested."

"You speak of eighteen half sessions, Mr. Friesner. What do you mean by half sessions?"

"That means that eighteen teachers instruct thirty-six schools. In other words, in eighteen rooms one class of pupils comes in the forenoon, and a different class in the afternoon. With such a condition of things, a portion of our pupils only get one-half the instruction afforded to others, and the work is much harder for the teachers. Of course I need not say that such a state of affairs is not just to all the people of the community. Every child of school age in this city has a right in law and in equity to the same amount of instruction in the public schools that any other child receives, and if his parents pay taxes and he does not get the instruction, both parents and child are deprived of a portion of their privileges and rights. This lack of school accommodations is general all over the city, and if people look at the matter rightly they will gladly vote the amount which it is absolutely necessary to have at once."

"But is there not some other money out of which you can build these rooms?"

"No, sir, there is not one cent available for that purpose. Of course, it might be possible to take some from the school fund, but that would involve either a cutting down

THE UNIVERSITY.

INTERESTING NOTES FROM OUR SOUTHERN COLLEGE.

The Programme for Commencement Week—The College of Medicine—The Maclay College of Theology—A Promising Future.

President M. M. Bovard furnishes to the current number of the Southern California Christian Advocate the following interesting items from our University of Southern California:

The progress of the University is very gratifying indeed, as may be seen from the size of our graduating class this year. It numbers ten, and may be considered our own first class, as they are the first who have pursued the entire course of study, covering a space of seven years.

THE COLLEGE OF MEDICINE.

The special work for the spring session is going on very satisfactorily. Some five weeks yet remain before the close of the term.

Prof. Lasher, who has been seriously ill for many months, is now so far recovered that he has sailed from New York for a summer among the hospitals of Europe. He will be back in time to again take up his duties at the opening of the autumn term. Prof. Darling has also received leave of absence for the remainder of the term and has gone East. He will also probably spend a portion of the summer in Europe. During his absence his chair is supplied by Dr. Murphy.

MACLAY COLLEGE OF THEOLOGY.

We are now prepared to announce positively that this institution will be opened for students soon after the sessions of the Pacific coast conferences, or about October 1st. This will be a new epoch in the history of Methodism on this coast. No longer will our young men who are called to the ministry be obliged to cross the continent to attend a theological school or go without such preliminary training. Nowhere is a well-trained ministry more needed than here, and nowhere is there more need of raising and training a ministry on the ground. The Lord, by the liberality of one of His servants, is providing for this need of our church on this coast.

Competent instructors and lecturers are being engaged, and will be on hand for work at the opening of the school. Lectures by preachers, laymen or practical themes will be made a special feature throughout the year. Many prominent men from the East visit California every year, and, in addition to the talent on this coast, we expect to secure valuable services from these visitors.

The full course of study usually pursued in our theological schools has been adopted. All possible pains will be taken to give the students a thorough training for their work.

The expenses will be moderate. Tuition free. There will be only a small incidental fee, such as is usually charged in the theological schools. Rooms and board are promised at reasonable rates, ranging from $3 to $5 per week. By self-boarding, expenses can be made very small. Preaching places, where students will receive some remuneration, can be secured by several students on timely application to the presiding elder of the Los Angeles district, Rev. R. W. C. Farnsworth, San Fernando, Cal.

We have the promise of those who have the finishing and furnishing of the college building in charge that it will be ready for use in time for the opening of the school—at least sufficient for the beginning of our work.

San Fernando is on the Southern Pacific Railroad, twenty-one miles north of Los Angeles. There are three passenger trains daily, each way. The college is about a mile from the station. Students and friends of the school will be met at the station if information is duly received as to time of arrival. Persons coming from the North can, if they prefer, come by steamer to San Pedro and then by rail forty-three miles, going through Los Angeles and changing cars there at the Central Depot.

The Maclay College has the advantage of a location in one of the best and most famous climatic belts in the world—that along the foot of the Sierra Madre Mountains. The altitude is about 1100 feet. The distance from the ocean about twenty miles, and from the mountains about two. The water is the best, and there is no malaria. The drainage is perfect, and the scenery of unusual beauty. The attractions will be especially great to those students who find it unfavorable to pursue their studies in the more rigorous climates of America.

The school will make a special effort to serve our entire church on the Pacific coast with the strictest impartiality, to cultivate an interest in the whole, and to be a feeder to all the Conferences. We accordingly seek the prayers and patronage of the Methodist Church of at least the entire coast.

Correspondence is solicited with young men who are looking towards the ministry, also with pastors and presiding elders. Some of our young preachers who are already in the itinerant work would do well to take a course of study at the theological school, a thing which is made practicable by the possibility that they can be provided with preaching places while thus engaged.

All correspondence should be addressed to Rev. R. W. C. Farnsworth, professor of practical theology and secretary of the faculty.

Marquette Notes.

(Ontario Record.)

Work in improving and beautifying the new town goes on apace. A large force of carpenters, painters, masons and graders are putting in their best strokes to make Marquette [illegible] the proprietors advertise it, "the model city."

P. Gargan has the contracts for the mason work and plastering, and it goes without saying that the work will be done in first-class style. Mr. Gargan's workmen are now engaged in building five handsome fountains for the park, the largest of which will be 75 feet in circumference, and be placed in the center of the park. A smaller one, 50 feet in circumference, adorns the hotel grounds.

The new hotel is rapidly nearing completion, and will be ready for the plasterers Saturday.

The proprietors of Marquette have an eye for the beautiful, and are determined that their park shall be a veritable garden spot; orange and lemon trees and ornamental shrubbery is being planted in profusion.

A plank sidewalk, five feet four inches wide, is being laid from the livery stable past Mr. Fraser's residence and along the main business street to the hotel.

Mr. Fraser has received word from General Engineer Perris, of the Santa Fé, that he will soon be here to locate the siding and depot at Marquette. The Cucamonga winery will make this their shipping point.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Orange and Vicinity.

MOVEMENT FOR A LOCAL CELEBRATION.

ORANGE, June 2.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Orange held a boom jollification the night of Wednesday, the 1st. A great deal of powder was burned, and much enthusiasm prevailed.

Mr. Paul, of Santa Ana, is about to open undertaking rooms in Orange.

Mr. Blasdell, with his youngest son, has gone East to visit relatives and the old home of his youth.

Tuesday the railroad graders, to the number of seventy or eighty teams, passed through the streets on their way further down. The employés working here have quite a populous camp just west of town.

The Orange Tribune is trying to work our citizens up to the point of having a local "Fourth" celebration. Heretofore this section has joined with Santa Ana, but it is time for us, with our large and increasing population, to observe the day in our own neighborhood.

We were treated to a down-east thunderstorm on Sunday last. The electric display was truly magnificent. Such occurrences are very rare in this locality.

This community is justly very proud of the finely-finished brick building, the board of officers and all the various appointments connected with the new bank just opened in our midst.

Earlham has over two miles of pipe laid. It connects with the large Smith reservoir, and the people can now be supplied with good, wholesome water, at reasonable prices.

Memorial services, conducted by the G. A. R. of this valley, were observed in the usual manner. One hundred veterans from the towns of Santa Ana, Orange, Tustin, Garden Grove and Westminster assisted in decorating the fourteen soldiers' graves and the beautiful evergreen monument to unknown which are in the Santa Ana Valley Cemetery.

Earlham has ten real-estate men. Orange has as many more, and in addition to these there is a very generous supply of the same class scattered about the country promiscuously, hence the boom is bound to continue if there is any virtue in good talkers.

The W. C. T. U. meeting held on Wednesday, the 1st inst., at the residence of Mrs. Cox, in McPherson, was largely attended. A good programme was carried out, and the whole meeting, with all its business details, was very interesting. A.

Alhambra.

CENSU SCHILDREN—HORSE CARS ON SUNDAY, ETC.

ALHAMBRA, June 1.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The census returns show that 115 sweet masters and misses of Alhambra are of sufficient age to attend school, leaving seventy young cherubs still lingering under the age of 5.

It is hardly a "long-felt want," but Mr. Johnson proposes opening another livery stable. If the high-stepper over which he daily draws the ribbons is any criterion, the young men will flock to his establishment when they feel like treating their best girl to a buggy ride.

As the "market report" is wont to murmur, "groceries are active." The grand opening of W. C. Welds' elegant grocery store Monday evening was attended by the wealth and beauty of Alhambra—so to speak. W. H. Stanton has disposed of his stock of groceries to S. D. Crow, who will continue to cater to the wants of our good housewives, at the old reliable, on the corner.

Hereafter the horse cars will run every Sunday, making regular trips, the same as on week days. This is against the judgment of the directors, but they were forced to it by the demands of their patrons. The cross-town road, to be called Alhambra and Ramona Railway, will be in operation within ninety days, after which, if any man gets caught out in a snow storm and commences walking around the proverbial circle, he is bound to strike a horse railroad, and if he doesn't get home, it will be because he hasn't 5 cents in his pocket.

There are many puzzled subscribers to the sprinkling-cart fund, who are wondering if the driver of the aforesaid dust-annihilator is a crank on ribbon gardening. They are led to this query by the persistency with which he confines his sprinkling to the center of the street, thus leaving a dark stripe of mud in the center, with two lighter stripes of dust on each side.

It is said that the people of the United States spend one-half their lives in the cars. Alhambra's people are not behind in this respect. George Lewman and wife have returned from a visit among eastern friends. Dr. W. R. Jones with his amiable lady depart for Long Beach this morning, for a short ramble on the seashore, after which they will deviate to the San Jacinto Mountains to spend the summer. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Whittemore bade good-bye to Alhambra last night, bound on a jaunt to the old Bay State and the adjoining commonwealth of leather hams and wooden nutmegs. Mr. W. will undoubtedly use his real-estate eloquence to expatiate on the beauties of Alhambra. J. M. Hawley and wife are of the impression that California summers are cooler than those in the States, and accordingly will not go East until September.

YUSUF.

KATE CHASE AT HOME.

A Beautiful and Noted Woman Living Quietly in Washington.

(Washington Letter to Troy Budget.)

Far out, north of the Capitol, and quite away from the fashionable [illegible] where the President and Secretary Whitney have their country places, stands Edgewood, the old home of Chief Justice Chase, where Mrs. Kate Chase and her daughter Ethel are living. The house is vast and roomy, and old-fashioned. A great hall runs through the middle, and on each side are high-ceiled, old-fashioned rooms. The presence of the Chief Justice pervades it. His marble bust still presides over the library, and his portrait on canvas looks down upon the hall. Chief Justice Chase is commonly said to have been the handsomest man who ever sat upon the Supreme Bench. The loss of fortune which has overtaken Kate Chase has not robbed her of the subtle charm which made her put all the women behind the door, as it were, in her presence. She has a profound and interesting personality quite apart from her beauty or her wit. She is a beauty, however, after that order which looks to the results impressed, not the means of the impression. Her nose is a snub; her mouth is nothing in particular, and her teeth are irregular; but nobody cares to study any other feature when she turns her hazel eyes on one, just as nobody knows what kind of figure she has because her grace is so superb. Then she can talk. She has a peculiar and beautiful intonation, one of those clear and excellent voices, rarer than any other charm in American women. To hear her speak one would be puzzled to know whether she came from North, South, East or West. A woman who has seen so much and enjoyed and suffered so much, becomes interesting if she has never been so before. It may be doubted, though, if Mrs. Chase was ever interesting for fools of either sex. She talks over their heads with serene unconsciousness. She measures her conversation by the standard of the people she was most accustomed to in her day, and they were the people who ruled. Her eldest daughter, Ethel, who is with her, possesses much of Mrs. Chase's style and manners. She is barely 17. Latterly she has taken a notion for the stage. She is very ambitious—wants to do "Portia" and "Queen Katharine," and all the other great parts that spirited young things hanker after. The other two girls, Kitty and Portia, are in Paris at school.

Washington society sees but little of Mrs. Chase. She is some distance out of town, although from her library windows the dome of the Capitol can be seen looming up a mile away. She has the saving adaptability of all people of sense. She is interested in her gardening, and in her daughters' education. She rides and drives, and fills up a life that would seem empty. She makes no apology or explanation for her altered style of living. Probably she inherits her father's incapacity for money affairs. Whatever might have been said, the invincible courage she has shown in misfortune commands respect.

Special Announcement.

The first advance in the price of Ivanhoe lots was made June 1st, as per advertisement for several months. For various good reasons, some of the lots are left at the original prices for another month; but most of them have been advanced 20 to 50 per cent. Even at advanced prices it is the best property offered for the money anywhere around Los Angeles, and buyers should choose their lots before the next advance, which will be made in July. The sale of lots in May was larger than in any previous month, and the end of June will find most of the lots sold. All who see Ivanhoe agree that it is the best property for the least money that can be found. The water system and the dummy road will both be ready by July, and many houses will be built in the next two months. Is you want a first-class, large lot, for a small sum of money, come at once. Byram & Poindexter, 27 West First street.

A FLOATING FESTIVAL.

A WEIRD, BRILLIANT AND INTERESTING EVENING IN INDIA.

Hindu Gods That Are Taken Out for an Airing Twice a Year—Vishnu Paraded on a Flatboat with Oriental Splendor.

[Special Correspondence Chicago Inter Ocean.]

In the capital of Southern Hindustan, the city of Madras, I have lately twice had the pleasure of witnessing the utterly Oriental gaiety of what is known in the East as "A Floating Festival."

Every Hindu temple has its lake of cleanliness, named the unrythmical, unpoetical monosyllable, "tank." The similar in New York is denominated a reservoir. The temple tank is a dug and walled square, each side as long as twice the usual distance between one street and the next in the American cities that are laid out in squares. The wall is made in steps all around, say twelve or thirteen, which may give a guess as to its depth. The distance from the street level to the surface of the water varies according to the weather or fluvial or tidal influences. Once in several steps there is a broad stair, as in the ancient theaters and amphitheaters of the Roman empire, and the broad ones were for the dignitaries and honorables, among whom ranked the vestal women, and no other women.

In the center of the Hindu tank stands a small, elevated pavilion. It is entered by steps; it has a roof and pillars, and in miniature rather an ecclesiastical aspect. These tanks being for general purification purposes, the people are constantly bathing in them. The Indian of the Orient keeps on still the same cloth around his hips, and usually improves the opportunity to wash vigorously all the rest of his apparel, i. e., two strips of about three yards each, the upper and the lower, seamless garments, which pass by the again unpoetical name of his "cloth"; his "upper cloth" or his "lower cloth," and "the cloth around his loins," this last being all that John the Baptist wore when his food was wild honey and locusts; all that is worn by the fisherman when he is in the Adiyar River, throwing his net or hauling it in full of fish, and all that in general is worn by those who are vigorously engaged in manual exercise. I should scarcely say vigorously engaged; yet they are occupied; and it is strange how much you can do when you do not hurry. The Madrassian retains these appropriate torrid zone fashions at the present time more than do Calcutta and Bombay, Madras being a more quiet city, and ought to be more quiet than she is. She is not naturally a port of Hindustan.

Each temple is dedicated to a special person of the Trinity of the Godhead, as, indeed, we have in Christendom "the Church of the Redeemer," etc. But more than that, each of the Trinity has his special following, his sect. One man is a Shivite, another is a worshiper of Vishnu; but both men believe in Shiva and Vishnu, and Brahma, too, which all are three in one or one in three; Shiva (written also Siva), the destroyer, in another of his phases, being also the creator, and thus the preserver of life, while specially Brahma is entitled the creator, Vishnu, the preserver, and Shiva, the destroyer.

The first floating festival I witnessed was upon the tank before a Vishnu temple; the second adjoined a temple of Shiva. In the illuminated display only a spectator very well versed could have told which of the triad was the one honored, and the programme of the one is that of the other.

The floating festivals depended for their brilliancy on fireworks; and, therefore, they were evening festivities, yet not late and dissipated. They began promptly at the end of the short twilight of the Torrid zone; if later, it was to await the arrival of His Excellency, the Governor of "the Madras Presidency," which means Southern India. The arrival of the Governor and his retinue, viz., the ladies of his household, the one or more officials by whom both Governor and the Lady Governor are always attended, entitled aide-de-camp, lieutenant, or the like, and his friends, for all whom, and for a few distinguished Madrassian-born, there is a booth in the middle of one of the sides, having a grand rural entrance from the street. It is open on the other side to the water, and has luxurious chairs and other seats, and is decorated by festoons of garlands made of thousands of small flowers strung on a thread. The very tender shoots of the budding palm hang here and there, and also fruits in their natural clusters.

The Asiatics in the sunny lands of the palm tree delight in these arrangements, and excel in producing them. The grand barouche drives up at last, and the new Governor and his attendant friends alight and come in. His name and title is the Right Hon. Robert Bourke, M.P. He is the son and brother of the Earl of Mayo. His late Earl brother was Viceroy of India. The Lady Susan Georgiana, the Governor's wife, is daughter of the Marquis of Delhousie. His Excellency was long an able London lawyer, and later was concerned, under government, with foreign affairs. He is also a traveler and author.

The new Governor's face and bearing indicate a benign, just, conciliatory gentleman toward the natural inheritors and perpetual residents of India. It is a sore question, the loftiness of the conqueror, the absence of Christian fraternity, and the haughty bearing here of all English and English descended people, with few and angelic exceptions.

The Governor is so new here that these things are about as novel to him as they are to me.

At one side in this bower of honor there is a table loaded with the carefully thread-strung flower wreaths, and several bouquets also. When the honorables are settled in the seats they each select, and they have relapsed from the stir of a first look at a wide scene where everything is bizarre resplendence, at once grotesque and ideal, the garlands are brought out and placed around the necks of the group of honor. His Excellency, the Governor, receives the finest and handsomest, which has a great tassel of spangles in it. He may be decorated with more than one string of fragrance. Lady Susan Bourke and whoever the other fair faces may be, are garlanded, and all the rest of the European retinue, etc., four hundred, while the flower-givers are all unconscious that they are thus garlanding the Inter Ocean; and these long wreaths, a yard and a half long, are, with due recognition of the courtesy, worn during our stay. There are fruits also; great clusters of fresh bananas hang where they should among the decorations, and on the table are oranges and other gifts of the garden.

Meanwhile, careering around the tank gently floats the chief point of the picture, a long, capacious raft. In the middle of it, under high canopy, well protected, ensconced, and adorned, sits in a wide chair of state no less than the great, honorific, emblematic statue of the Deity, or, as the more scholarly Brahman might say, of that phase of the universal Deity, worshiped in the great temple, the near temple, over whose debarring threshold out-caste, or even low-caste, foot may never step.

This figure is Vishnu (or Shiva), taken out of his consecrated niche, where none but Brahman or Vestal may trim the lamp. It glitters with real jewels; true gold and silver and precious stones form the girdle and armlets and bracelets and long necklaces and anklets that altogether reach from face to feet.

Before a European tide sluiced up around the East India coast the last great conquering wave was the Mohammedan. It swept into India from the northwest, and spent its force before it reached the south of the southern half of the Hindu peninsula. Consequently in Southern Hindustan remain more of the old great Hindu temples, while Northern India was demolished and rebuilt in the also marvelous Saracenic style, and of an utterly different character.

The Hindu claims that in a properly-built temple every proportion embodies a principle of philosophy; speaks, like the pyramid of Gizeh, with mystic mathematics; contains revealings, occult or open, according to the love, the dim or clear sight of the seer, truths historical and prophetic, philosophy that can bide its time. Here, remaining also intact, religiously guarded, are said to remain in some of these temples jewels of those former times.

More conspicuous than the sheltered Shiva on the sheltered barge are the living, dancing damsels, whose whole lives are devoted to the service of the temple; who consider themselves each the wife of the god, as the nun of Christendom is considered the bride and wife of Christ. The dancing mentioned in the Old Testament, religious dancing, has here its phase. Probably the dancing of these temple women is more like the dance of the vestals before the gods of Greece and Rome than any modern movement. It very faintly resembles the rapid, revelrous, and a thousand times more agile and graceful dance of the modern professional dancer.

These Hindu girls and women took merely a few steps, steps intimated rather than taken, gesturing gently at the same and all in rythm, yet a rythm faintly palpable, and they twined in and out as gently and slowly as the mildest of domestic quadrille.

Their costumes were slightly or no different from the customary draping, but brighter, and, in some instances, handsomely bespangled material having quite an effect. But I know these devotees would look with amazement at a New York Niblo performance of the "Black Crook" or the "White Fawn." They are a curious caste in the Hindu religious and social fabric, until even the present time, as to the great mass of Hindus, these are, it is said, the only Hindu women of education.

They are as irrevocably consecrated, and as rigidly outside of family ties and obligations as the nuns of a cloistered convent.

The barge moves slowly around the tank, thus making the long circuit only three or four times. Against the fence, which all around encloses the reservoir, there leans a solid bank of people. The Pavilion illuminated is virtually a central chandelier. The temple towers have lamps closely set, outlining every cornice. The barge is all glittering. Little lamps in little niches all around the tank light up the fence of dark figures in white drapings. Rockets are flying into the air and falling into the water. A peculiar firework is flung direct into the tank, and, after a little, fires up with a bursting and reburstring and whirling, a wonderful flaming splurge. The smoke from the oil of innumerable torches and lamps, rising like a cloud, sways here and there, but generally here, and makes everything lurid. A temple elephant marches in the street, keeping the round of progress of the barge Vishnu. The homes of the Hindus well-to-do surround the square and cloistered wives and daughters are peeping out of their privacy. On the barge the temple women, who are, revilingly termed "the Nautch girls," are not all the time doing their gentle movements. Priests direct its floating, which is managed by long, light poles, the ever-useful bamboo. It is brought specially near and is stopped before the bower of honor, within and adjoining which are all the garlanded European spectators. I am lucky in being within the roomy reserve, and my several Brahmin friends, themselves as Oriental as any, but of intelligence superior to the ranks of the practicing priest, are inside also, and kindly explaining any points.

After it is over we stand waiting until the elephant comes, full of pranks and as big as Jumbo, or at least a gigantic fellow, thrusting his trunk among us for the contribution of a coin, which he hands up to his keeper on his back. We were not waiting for the elephant. But after him comes at last the great statue himself. Shiva, with all his ornaments, is borne close by us toward his house, which is the temple. The crowd divides, making a path as for a grand personage. Food cooked by Brahmin hand is handed out gratuitously, in the long, covered and columned approach to the temple. Though standing quite outside, several kinds were brought to us with much courteous attention—rice with several curries and other items, all which, I believe, were abstractly good. Palatial relish is doubtless controlled by habit. That which might be one man's fast is another one's feast.

These "floating festivals" occur periodically for each great temple; not too often, for they are expensive, but at least once or twice annually. Beside the Governor and his group there were no European spectators, and the leading daily newspapers of Madras, instead of writing up and explaining the festival, did not mention it.

I am learning that when a populace is ruled, and by appointees from outside, it is not courted and flattered as when the populace are themselves "the sovereign people," upon whose decision depends the appointment of the highest and the lowest officer of the government. Any occasion which collected thousands of the populace and entertained them for an evening, and was to them an important, brilliant and expensive affair, would in America have been elaborately described, the why and the wherefore, so that a stranger would understand it without asking anybody a question, and might even see it with newspaper eyes without going out of the house.

Queen Victoria's Viceroy and the Colonial Governor stand as a kind of weather-brace between the collision of the rough elements on each side of them; on the one hand, the possible overbearing proclivities of the muscular and pantaloonened Englishman; on the other, the cloud of thunder that may be veiled by oriental drapery.

The Viceroy, or the Governor, the very highest, and his wife, are generally more amicable and kindly in their manners with the people than are their suite, starting from the Governor's threshold down to the smallest British-born government employé. The acknowledged highest one seems to be above the attempt to magnify himself. The Governors of India serve five years. Some have gone away hated, and some beloved. Hindustan, at present, is like a cake of dough left to ferment. It is rising, it is fermenting with foaming rapidity. Just in proportion as the people become educated they want to rise and be somebody again, a voice to be heard among the nations.

RIDING THE GOAT.

Burlesque Odd Fellow Initiation in Yolo County.

[Sacramento Record-Union.]

At Black's, Yolo county, last Tuesday, Will Black was initiated into the mysteries of the burlesque degree of Odd Fellowship. The meeting, according to the Woodland Democrat, was held in a large warehouse at that place, and over 300 people from all parts of the county were present. The candidate was brought into the arena and given a little ride around the warehouse on a rail, after which a nicely-greased pole was brought in, which he was made to climb. He was then blindfolded and made to climb a high ladder to a platform and then descend through a slanting hose made of canvas. As he worked his way down the hose there were men stationed about ten feet apart who helped him along by caressing him with rubber bags filled with air. After he had managed to get down through the hose and it was found that he was not dead, he was again taken on a platform and placed on a slippery, slanting board. He went down the board at a mile-a-minute gait and landed in a hogshead of water, where he was ducked about fifty times per minute. The manipulators of the scheme then took pity on him, and to warm him up put him in a large blanket, some twenty men catching hold, and he was gently tossed for about fifteen minutes. He would occasionally hit the roof, but a little thing like that was not allowed to mar the fun. As soon as he recovered from the blanket treatment, a live goat was brought in, to which the victim was strapped and then taken around the hall, after which an ambulance was called in and Mr. Black taken home to recover. After the warehouse had been cleared, all present indulged in a grand dance, the music being furnished by the Tynan & O'Malley Band, from Sacramento.

TWO FRIENDS MEET.

"Hello! old fellow. What have you been doing to yourself? You look like a subject for the undertaker," exclaimed the man on the right.

"I have been taking mercury and potash mixtures until they have nearly ruined me," squeaked the old man on crutches.

"And I," said the other, "have been taking the genuine Swift's Specific, which has built me up from the first dose."

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC.

Nature's own remedy, made from roots gathered from the forests of Georgia. The method by which it is made was obtained by a half-breed from the Creek Indians, who inhabited a certain portion of Georgia, which was communicated to one of the early settlers, and thus the formula has been handed down to the present day. The demand has been increasing until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great

HAS anybody hereabouts remarked "boom?"

SHALL we ask ex-Senator Hazard to stand up and nominate the Fourth of July?

SAN JOSE court fined a man a dollar for winking at a lady. If the lady winked back he got his money's worth.

PASADENA, in grappling with the problem of sewers, is not daunted by the prospective outlay of $100,000 or $150,000 for that purpose. Pasadena is nervy, as well as level-headed.

THE Beecher memorial fund is gradually and satisfactorily growing to the amount needed to erect the monument. The sum now in the hands of the committee is nearly $22,000.

A FLORIDA paper thinks that some of the regular season's burglars have concluded to remain there through the summer. Then they are goners. Better go North and give themselves up.

"FORTUNATE and wise is the man who builds his potato-house so as to make it available as a cyclone pit."—[Florida Times. Yes, but we don't have potato-houses in California. And we don't have thunder or lightning or cyclones. That is, we think we don't. See you later.

SACRAMENTO is moving with a petition to its Assessor to raise his valuations of the big land grants in that county. By this means Sacramento hopes to force the heavy land-owners to subdivide and sell, thus inducing settlement and consequent prosperity. This may be considered the artificial method of raising a boom.

THE attention of San José, Sacramento, Oakland, Oroville, San Francisco, and the rest of the Northern Citrus Belt is respectfully called to the figures which our county presents, as a summary of its real-estate transactions last month. If they cultivate orange trees the rest of their natural lives they are not likely to raise such a boom as this.

The London correspondent of the New York Evening Post, an English-man who is in the confidence of the Times, cables to his paper: "I have every reason to believe that, despite the general belief to the contrary, the episode of the Times' Parnell letter is not concluded, but that action of a most conspicuous kind, and possibly with the most conclusive results, is about to be taken."

ADIRONDACK MURRAY has solved the Lake Champlain "sea serpent" mystery. The "monster" is simply a long line of birds of the plover variety, which fly close to the surface of the water. When their white bellies are turned toward the spectator, a mile or two away, a serpent, white and sheeny, seems to be swimming rapidly upon the water, with undulatory and truly serpent-like motions. When they turn their slate-colored backs to the eye of the observer the monster seems to sink instantly into the waves.

A Magnificent Showing.

The review of Los Angeles real-estate transactions for last month, which appear elsewhere in today's TIMES, is something for every believer in the boom, and for every non-believer as well, to read carefully, ponder upon and quote. The figures there given, in comparison with those of preceding months, and with corresponding months of former years, are the most convincing argument of the steadiness and reliability of the county's growth. April, 1886, showed sales amounting to $1,164,510. The same month this year has a record of $7,172,124, showing a multiplication by about 4½. May, 1886, had $2,055,141—the heaviest sales recorded for any month up to that time. But May, 1887, comes in smilingly with $8,163,327, a multiplication by nearly 4.

The total sales for the first five months of 1886 were $7,298,474, as against $80,526,062 for the corresponding five months of this year, which again shows an increase of more than four-fold. So we can lay it down as a safe proposition that the real-estate sales of this year will aggregate four times the amount of those of 1886. The total for last year was over $28,000,000; look out for $112,000,000 to $120,000,000 for 1887.

If 1886 was a booming year—and nobody disputes that proposition—then 1887 must be set down as a quadruple boomer!

Another comparison which we cannot refrain from making, although it may not be very magnanimous to do so, is with the real-estate sales of San Francisco. The San Francisco press boasts of the transactions for May, which amounted to $2,500,000 and made the heaviest month since January. As against this note the Los Angeles report of $8,163,327—which is about three and one-fourth times as great. Substantially the same proportion holds as to the months of January, March, April and May of this year. San Francisco's grand total, $8,346,159; Los Angeles, $25,658,005—three times as great.

The San Francisco Call, comparing a comparatively prosperous with a notably dull year, says: "The general monthly average this year is about four times what it was a year ago. If there is another county in the world that can make such a showing, let it be heard from."

Here it is, brother Call. Consider it heard from. We, of Los Angeles, can compare a booming year with a booming year and show the same four-fold advance. More than that, we can compare our figures with yours and multiply you three times!

We shall shortly go further and institute a comparison not with old-fogy San Francisco, but with Kansas City, which, in the rapidity of its growth and the magnitude of its real-estate transactions, has been considered one of the most phenomenal places in the United States. The report of Kansas City's sales for May is not yet at hand, but the chances are that, as they have been running of late, Los Angeles is about neck-and-neck with the great boomer of the Missouri Valley. At our most astonishing rate of progression, however, should it continue unchecked, we will soon pass Kansas City and leave her as far in the shade as we have already left San Francisco.

Those "Good Old Days."

Life to the man of 60 years is, in some respects, like a romance. The changes which science has effected, the advancement which the age has witnessed, must, as he looks backward, invest his life with something of the sense of the marvelous.

Sixty years ago what were the facilities for education, for transportation, and for communication between different parts of the world as compared with those of today? What was the greater portion of this American continent but an untraversed wilderness? What was the Old World but a country familiar to but few, and linked to this country only by the slow-sailing ship which took long weeks in traversing the watery highway between?

Supposing some of the good people in our midst, who are forever talking of the "good old times," could be set back again sixty years, does any one suppose, for a moment, that they would be content? Put Los Angeles, for instance, where she was a half a century ago, and what should we have? We should have a transcendent climate and a rich soil, unappreciated and unimproved, and a people and a government unlike what our own is today. Instead of the railroad traversing the continent and linking us with all the busy centers of traffic, we should have the pack-mule and the bronco, and between us and the East an unbroken and untraveled desert. Instead of the telegraph, flashing its daily news to us from every quarter of the globe, there would be a ship two or three times a year bringing us tidings from the port from which it had sailed, but perhaps nothing from any part of the great world beyond it. The whistle of the swift and sure-sailing steamer would never wake the echoes along the coast.

It is a mistake to talk of "the good old times." The best age that the world has ever seen is the present age. There never was a period when human progress was so rapid, and all the conditions of social and political life were so favorable as they are today. Men are no less moral now than they were in the old days and no less patriotic. Philanthropy never was more sincere nor more searching; benevolence was never more open-handed; religious inquiry never more alert, nor the church more aggressive in its warfare against the wrong. Political intrigue and demagoguery are not more common than in "the good old time" of Benedict Arnold and Aaron Burr. The great difference lies in our increased facilities for learning and detecting the wrong. Justice in some cases has, perhaps, been slower, and corruption more apparent, but popular sentiment is in favor of punishing the guilty. The man who looks at the world as it is, and intelligently contrasts it with the world as it was, will not cry out very eagerly for time to turn backward in its flight.

A Few Points About Shopping.

A lady writes to THE TIMES in great indignation, claiming that a certain dry goods house in this city displays goods in its show window marked "away down," and when she goes in to buy these same goods a day or two later she finds the prices "away up." She thinks this a fraud and ought to be exposed.

There are tricks in all trades, and possibly the dry goods business has a few. But it is a question whether our indignant correspondent could claim the proclaimed prices in these goods unless the sample and the placard naming the price were in the show-window at the time she went to buy. An offer to sell anything at a given figure without naming time may be withdrawn at any moment before negotiations are actually commenced for its purchase. In almost all branches of business the prices of today are not the prices of tomorrow, and no merchant considers himself bound by an offer which he may have made at a more or less remote time without then finding a purchaser.

Our correspondent may have been misled and humbugged; we are not advancing or disputing that proposition, because we are not fully conversant with the facts. It may be a shrewd trick on the part of some dry goods men to announce "catch" prices on a certain line of articles for a certain day, and, after the day is past, to refuse to sell at such rates. If this is the case, then our correspondent and all of her shopping sisters should be shrewd enough to buy the "catch" goods on the "catch" day. Then they can make a little money accomplish a great deal, and the lilies of the valley (which toil not and neither do they spin) and Solomon in all his glory would not be arrayed like one of these.

If the ladies are able to gain any pointers from this little dissertation on business, and the husbands and fathers, who generally have to foot the bills, find their loads proportionately lightened, we shall feel amply repaid for thus giving the dry goods business away, so to speak.

A Good Word for Cold Storage.

The fruit commission firm of T. W. Evans & Co., of Cleveland, O., write to THE TIMES, strongly indorsing the cold-storage process as a preparation for fruit to be shipped across the continent. They say that, heretofore, the business of handling California fruits in the East has not proven a brilliant success, owing to the damage which was certain to occur from the overheating of fruit in transit. A carload of oranges which Evans & Co have just received from Riverside, and which was previously treated by the Interocean Cold Storage Company of that place, pans out well. Our correspondents think that this cooling process will solve the problem of California shipments, and place the business on a sounder basis than it ever had before. Thus, scientific methods are constantly removing stumbling-blocks from the pathway of trade, and securing to producers the fullest reward for their labors.

With the testimonials which are accumulating in favor of the new process, California shippers will not be slow to adopt it, and within a few years, this or some other equally effective treatment will be in general use.

We believe the fruit trade of California is yet in its very inception. Better methods of handling, quicker and cheaper transit and more satisfactory marketing will develop it into one of the grandest industries of the United States.

Moving for the Convention of Teachers.

The State delegates appointed by the Governor, in accordance with an act of the Legislature, to attend the session of the National Educational Association in Chicago next month, and endeavor to secure the appointment of San Francisco as the place of next meeting, are moving forward with their campaign in systematic order. They have issued a circular inviting the teachers and friends of education in the State to accompany them next month, and swell the delegation to such proportions as to command attention. The plan is a good one, and doubtless many teachers will join the excursion. It will be a good thing for those who attend, and their presence may help to secure a good thing for California.

It is estimated that fully 10,000 educators will be in attendance at the Chicago convention, and a body of that size and caliber is worth attracting to this coast. With the popularity which California has attained of late as a place for national assemblies, and the universal desire in the East to visit this coast, the San Francisco proposition probably stands a good chance of success. The pedagogues and pedagoguesses, if they conclude to come, will, of course, take in Los Angeles en route, and our section will divide the honors and advantages with San Francisco.

A Society Department.

Realizing that apace with the material growth of Los Angeles, the city's social life has crystallized in such shape as now to demand formal recognition, THE TIMES has made arrangements to carry an organized society department. It will be kept free from the slobber and Jenkinsism which disgust manly and womanly readers, but which are unhappily predominant in much of the so-called "society journalism" of the day. It will aim to be merely a straightforward, alert, untoadying resumé of society events past, and similar announcement of events to come. The readers who are interested in such matters can help make the department valuable by sending in their notices and announcements to the society editor. The department will be a feature of every Sunday's issue, and will be cultivated according to the interest manifested.

ARRANGEMENTS are in progress for a trip by balloon from St. Louis to New York, under the joint auspices of the New York World and the United States Signal Service. Columbus, O., will be about the half-way point on the aerial voyage, the route being almost a bee line. The expedition has been under consideration for some time past by the meteorologists, and the observations will, it is fully anticipated, be of great scientific value. The ascent will be made from St. Louis June 10th, and it is expected that the trip can be made in about three days.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEWIS MORRISON.—This artist appeared again at the Grand Opera-house last night in The Galley Slave. The house was fair in size and appreciative. Tonight Won at Last by the same company.

DAN'L. SULLY.—This Irish comedian, who is popular in the East, will make his first visit to this city next week, appearing at the Grand Opera-house in his two plays, The Corner Grocery and Daddy Nolan. The local management confidently expects a very profitable week, and the indications point to this result.

PEOPLE AND THINGS.

Prince Napoleon's younger son, who now bears the title of Count Luigi Moncalieri, has entered the Italian service, and is quartered with his regiment at Verona.

Ralph Disraeli, nephew of the late Lord Beaconsfield, will soon be graduated at Cambridge, England. The Queen, it is said, will push him at once into public life.

Robert H. Eddy, a Boston patent solicitor who died last week, left $30,000 toward the erection of an equestrian statue of Gen. Fitz John Porter, in Portsmouth, N. H. Meanwhile the Grant monument lingers.

Queen Christina of Spain, with the little King, her two daughters, and the Infanta Isabella, has taken up her residence for six weeks at Aranjuez, on the banks of the Tagus. It is twenty-two years since royalty honored the little town by residing there.

Queen Kapiolani has had her photograph taken, but her native modesty would not permit her to adopt the décolleté fashion so popular in the effete East. She wore her royal robe, with a broad sash crossed over the shoulder—a combination of gold and pink impossible to describe.

The President, it is said in Washington, has concluded to go to St. Louis to attend the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, and it is not improbable that he will extend his trip to Kansas City, go north to Omaha and St. Paul, and stop at Milwaukee and Chicago on the way back.

Mr. Ezekiel, the famous American sculptor, has just sent to a Baltimorean a life-size bust of the Abbé Liszt. It is said to be the only one of the great musician taken wholly from life, is in bronze, and was cast in Berlin. It was primarily for this work the Sculptor Ezekiel was decorated by the Kings of Belgium and Italy.

President Cleveland is reported to have said to a lady who recently congratulated him, and expressed a hope that he might enjoy a second term: "I thank you sincerely, but I am afraid I will never see the end of my present term." His tones were in no sense jocular, and it is believed that he had reference to the condition of his health, and not to any fears of violent death.

Mrs. Fawcett, widow of the illustrious English Postmaster-General, has refused to join the woman's movement, led by Mrs. Gladstone, against the Crimes Bill. "I am one of those," she explains, "who think that those who kill or shoot their neighbors, maim cattle, cut off the hair of girls and pour tar over their heads, ought to be punished, whether they live in Ireland or in England."

Anarchist: Well, sir, give me money and time enough, and I can construct an implement of devastation which would shake the whole city of New York like a house of cards! Stranger: Would it make much noise? Anarchist: My dear sir, the concussion would be felt for hundreds of miles. Stranger: You don't say so! My friend, you can build me one of the machines, and have it done next Saturday night, if possible. Anarchist: Excuse me, sir; are you a Socialist? Stranger: Not to any great extent; but I live next door to a fashionable church with a bell-ringing sexton. I want to play a little joke on him when he starts the circus Sunday morning.

La Reina de Los Angeles.

Sierra Madre's mountain's rise
Half hid in hazy, purple skies,
In autumn, when the vineyard yields
Its luscious store, when brown the fields,
When morning winds blow fresh and cold
And oranges are turning gold;
Ah, well remembered autumn day,
When I saw beneath the orange trees
Her, whom I called in boyish way,
La Reina de Los Angeles.

The setting sun a purple glow
Threw o'er Sierra Madres' snow,
And filmy streaks of pearly sheen
Bridged o'er each torrent-voiced ravine;
The vast plains to the ocean's shore
Springs green and golden livery wore;
The glowing sun was sinking down
In the ruddy mists that hid the sea,
When next I saw thy fairest town,
Oh, Reina de Los Angeles!

Fair City of the Angels! Queen
Since last within thy streets I've been,
I've trod on many a far-off shore!
Again I reach my heart-queen's door—
With crape 'tis hung—with tears I'm blind;
I've come so far—so far to find
That farther still she is above
Than when I in my boyish days
Loved her, but dared not tell my love,
*Mi Reina querida un angeles!

Meteorological Jokes.

[San Francisco Post.]

Nature has been playing a few meteorological jokes upon California within the last year for the benefit of Florida. Last winter the tender tourist was astonished and the oldest inhabitant horrified by a snowstorm, and a few days ago the mercury in San Francisco climed up to 97—a point it had never touched before within the memory of the oldest Silurian entombed in the Bulletin catacombs. Then Napa has lately produced a frost, Sonoma a sunstroke and Tulare a thunderstorm. We have even had symptoms of cyclones here and there, although as yet no damage has been done to anything more substantial than a shed.

No "Trash Movers."

It is reasonable to assume, says a Kansas paper, that the recent copious and glorious rains have been sent in answer to prayers; but, if the showers keep increasing in vigor, it might be well enough to amend our requests to Omnipotence to conform with the darky's earnest but cautious appeal: "Oh, Lo'd, please to sen' us down a rain—jes' a nice little drizzle-drazzle; but, deah Lo'd, we doan' want none o' dem yah d—d trash movers."

A Bull Argument on Ice.

[Tid-Bits.]

"I see that bacteria have been discovered in Hudson River ice," observed Fangle.

"Ah!" replied his wife, "that will be another excuse for raising the price, I suppose."

Important Ruling by the Railroad Commission—The Boom at Riverside Growing Gigantic—How the Coal Famine Is Brought About—Other Coast News.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.] The case of Lum Cheong, accused of falsely impersonating another Chinaman to evade the restriction act, came to a conclusion this evening in the United States District Court, before Judge Hoffman and a jury. Cheong arrived from Sidney April 3d. He presented to the customs authorities a return certificate made out in the name of Ah Que, and attempted to prove to the officials that he was the person the certificate was issued to. The testimony showed that Cheong purchased the certificate of Quong Yun & Co., of Hong Kong, for $10, and that a regular business of selling certificates was carried on by the firm. The jury, after five hours' deliberation, returned to court and announced a disagreement, standing ten for acquittal.

COMPLAIN OF BAD TREATMENT.

When the steerage passegers on the quarantined ship Gaelic were transferred to the ship W. H. Macy, the Japanese on board were given the option of remaining with 1200 Chinese or going between decks. These decks were covered only with canvas and lighted only through the hatchways. As Japanese are required by law to be vaccinated there was no danger of an outbreak of smallpox among them. The Japanese succeeded in sending a letter to the Japanese Mission, in this city, in which they complain bitterly of their treatment on board, of the poor food given them, and even of insults to two Japanese married women on board by the customs officials. Complaint has been made to the Japanese Consul of the alleged bad treatment, by the Government officials and the steamship company, of the Japanese passengers.

The quarantine on the ship W. H. Macy has been raised, and the Chinese and Japanese on board are being landed after passing a personal examination before the quarantine officer.

RIVERSIDE.

A Big Company Formed—Railway Progress—Miscellaneous Matters.

RIVERSIDE, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.] The Riverside Improvement Company was incorporated here today, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, and the following board of directors: Emil Rosenbal, A. S. White, Dr. Joseph Jarvis, John G. Booth and O. T. Dyer. The board organized by electing the following officers: President, A. S. White; vice-president, Dr. Jarvis; secretary, H. J. Rudisill; treasurer, O. T. Dyer. The objects of the company are to bring artesian water from the Thorn tract, about ten miles from Riverside, and pipe it over the city under a 200-foot pressure. They will also build a hotel on Rubidoux Mountain, at a cost of over a quarter of a million dollars, to be ready for occupancy next January.

A train load of steel rails, plates and spikes went to the front today, and a force of 500 men will commence trackla ying tomorrow, and reach South Riverside by the 15th, when the new hotel, the Tenescal, will be inaugurated.

An electric railway company is being formed at South Riverside to build a road ten miles long, from the depot to the top of the mountain back of the town, and to build an immense hotel there.

COAL HIGHER.

As Tonnage Becomes Scarce Prices Continue to Advance.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.] The price of foreign coal is steadily advancing, the best steam coal from Newcastle and New South Wales selling at $7.50 per ton in cargo lots, deliverable seventy days hence, an advance of $1 per ton over former figures. Cardiff and Liverpool coal is $8. The advance is owing to short tonnage. Reports of the shortage of the wheat crop is in part responsible. The disengaged tonnage in port is 87,000 tons, against 27,000 tons one year ago, while 212,000 tons is on the way, nine-tenths of which is available for wheat. It is claimed that ship-owners, realizing that the wheat crop is liable to fall into the hands of manipulators, are disinclined to send any more ships into port, and, in this contingency, still higher prices for steam coals are predicted. As far as quantity is concerned the northern collieries can produce all that is needed, but the steamship companies must have the best article obtainable, and continue to use foreign coal.

An extension of sixty days beyond the limit of November 30th for return on the tickets can be securred at St. Louis on payment of $20 additional. RUS.

A RULING.

The Railroad Commission Decides Against the Southern Pacific.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.] The Southern Pacific and South Pacific Coast Railroad companies, operating ferryboats across San Francisco Bay, recently abolished their rule permitting more than one ride each day on the monthly commutation tickets issued by the companies. Complaint was made to the State Railroad Commissioners, and the latter have made a ruling that the roads, once having instituted the low rate of fare, could not abolish it or advance it without first having obtained the approval of the Railroad Commission. This is the first time the point has been decided by the commission as to its powers in such contingency.

The Superior Court convened at 5 p.m. and confirmed the sale, and the deeds and transfers, including personal property owned jointly by Bartlett and McMahon in the hotel and around the springs property, were all made out, which leaves Mrs. S. G. McMahon and S. G. McMahon, the heirs, sole owners of the property. The springs will be thoroughly overhauled and fixed up for next season's business, as it is too late to commence much improvement this year. Next year the property will be greatly improved.

AGITATOR O'BRIEN.

He Has a Warm Reception in New York, and Again Shakes His Shillelah at Lansdowne.

By Telegraph to The Times.

BOSTON, June 2.—William O'Brien, Dennis Kilbride and Charles Ryan, of the Dublin Freeman's Journal, left Boston this morning for New York.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Editor O'Brien arrived here this morning from Boston. After dining in private, O'Brien was conducted to the Academy of Music, where a most enthusiastic reception awaited him. The auditorium was packed to its utmost capacity. Mayor Hewitt, ex-Mayor Grace and other prominent citizens occupied seats on the stage, which was decorated with intertwined English and Irish flags. As soon as O'Brien appeared a storm of applause arose and lasted for several minutes.

O'BRIEN'S SPEECH.

On being introduced by the chairman, O'Brien spoke feelingly of the extraordinary extent to which American sympathy had been stirred by the events in Canada. Lansdowne, he said, had been a more successful apostle for Ireland and the Irish cause than they could ever be. They could only tell the tale of his deeds in Ireland, but these deeds and Lansdowne's modes had told the tale all the world over. The horrible moments spent in Canada, the speaker said, lie lightly in his memory when he remembered that these incidents have illustrated the true character of Lansdowneism, and the terrible things such evictions are which are now being perpetrated in Ireland. Lansdowne has said everything he can through the press, and O'Brien believed that the most bitter partisans dare not stand up and say that Lansdowne has denied the charge. Referring to John Bright's letter, read in Birmingham, O'Brien said:

"I regret that his life is ending in bitter winter rather than in the glorious sunset in which Mr. Gladstone is ascending. Bright disapproves of my mission in the same breath in which he calls Gladstone a traitor. [Cries of 'Shame,] I am not sorry to be in such company." [Loud applause.] "Lansdowne," said the speaker, "not satisfied with being damned as a landlord, has added to his guilt that of an instigator of crime and outrage. He inspired those who carried out his outrages, and they were the men who yoked themselves like jackasses to his carriage."

LANSDOWNE'S PART IN THE PLOT.

"He knew," said O'Brien "that the outrage was to be perpetrated by some 'gentlemen' volunteers who behaved so gallantly at the battle of Ridgeway. [Laughter.] Four hundred of these, with their side-arms on, were of the mob who tried, in the dark, at Kingston, to murder us. I charge Lansdowne here tonight with that crime. He answered our demand for free speech with revolver shots. I venture to think that we shall not hear for some time from London about 'Parnellism and crime,' and, by the way, I shall have something to say about 'Lansdowne and crime.'"

The representatives of the American press, he said, were literally and truly the saviors of himself and party. The mob would have trampled them to death had it not been for this powerful sheet of protection. Mr. O'Brien devoted some time to an exposition of the condition of affairs in Ireland, etc., and was followed by Kilbride and others.

Letters of regret were received and read from ex-Senator Conkling, ex-Gov. Hoadly, Gov. Hill and Archbishop Corrigan.

A resolution was adopted denouncing in forcible terms Lord Lansdowne and the Canadian outrages against O'Brien. They declare that the sympathy of the entire people is with Ireland in the struggle for home rule.

A Stormy Session Probable.

CINCINNATI, June 2.—Assembly No. 35, miners' division of the Knights of Labor, now in session here, did nothing in the general session today. The entire time was occupied by the committees on the work assigned them yesterday. Indications are that the session will be long and stormy, and that an explosion is not improbable on the occasion of the election of officers.

CLEVELAND.

The President Arranging for a Long Trip.

He Will Journey Through the West and Visit the Pacific Coast,

Making Brief Visits at the Principal Cities on the Way.

The Plan Adopted at the Suggestion of His Political Henchmen—Meanwhile He Celebrates the Anniversary of His Wedding by Going Fishing.

By Telegraph to The Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.] A special to the Bulletin from Washington says: "There is every reason to believe that the promise which the President recently made to the St. Louis delegates that he would, if he could, visit their city next fall, will be kept, and that the visit to that city will only be a comparatively small feature of a great and extensive trip which he has been planning, and the arrangements for which will be consummated on his return to the White House. The President has seen but little of the United States. He has, during his lifetime, traveled but little outside the State of New York. He has never been in the West at all. But he has made up his mind of late that it will be to his personal and political advantage to make an elaborate journey this year. His wife has persuaded him to do so as a matter of pleasure, and several Democratic politicians, chief among whom is Postmaster-General Vilas, have urged him to do so as a matter of practical politics. If the President can make his arrangements, he will leave this city in the first week of August, and will probably remain away until the 1st of October. He will travel in a special car, containing the members of his immediate household and two or three Cabinet officers. The intention is to go clear across the continent to the Pacific coast. The principal cities on the line of the route will be visited in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Minnesota. Postmaster-General Vilas is particularly anxious that he should make a good impression in those States in time for the fall elections. The President is curious to explore the Territories along the line of the Northern Pacific Railway and it is now in his plan to go as far as Portland, Or. Indeed, it is said that he would very much like to steam up the Pacific Ocean as far as Alaska, although he has been told that this would be construed as a violation of the precedent which permits no President to go outside the country during his term of office. It is probable that in going and coming on this long two months' journey the President and his party will visit Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Paul, possibly Portland and San Francisco, Omaha, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati and other important cities, in order that he may come in contact with the people, and especially with the working politicians."

CLEVELAND'S WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

SARANAC INN (N. Y.), June 2.—The anniversary of the wedding day of President and Mrs. Cleveland dawned beautifully at Saranac Inn. When Mrs. Cleveland sat down to breakfast she found a little cluster of four-leaved clovers at her plate. At 10 o'clock, after smearing their faces liberally with ointment, President and Mrs. Cleveland and party went off fishing for the day.

NEW YORK, June 2.—A special from Albany says: "President Cleveland and wife, it is now definitely known, will be the guests of Gov. Hill at the new Executive Mansion. It is thought that the President will arrive on June 11th. He will remain here several days.

On reaching the ground trolling was begun at once, and Mrs. Cleveland soon caught the first fish. She also caught the second, landing it after a long struggle. Lunch was eaten in picnic fashion, and, after the meal, there was more fishing. Mrs. Cleveland's first fish was a seven-pounder. On their return a mound of flowers on the center-table and vases filled with wild violets and other wood flowers standing upon the writing-desk were simple reminders furnished by lady friends of Mrs. Cleveland of her wedding day anniversary. The party were fatigued after their day's excursion and retired early.

Demand an Increase of Wages.

PITTSBURGH, June 2.—The officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers are busy preparing for their annual convention and wage conference next week. The workmen have decided to ask for an advance in wages of 10 per cent., or 50 cents per ton, an increase over the present wages. The manufacturers claim that the condition of trade does not warrant an increase in the scale, while the workmen hold that the "good times of last year and prospects for the future" fully justify the advance.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS.

Proceedings of the International Convention in Session at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 2.—[By the Associated Press. The day's business of the International Sunday-school Convention was opened by a resolution to substitute "the Sabbath" to indicate Sunday, which was referred to the Executive Committee. After some routine business had been disposed of the subject of better organization was taken up and discussed, in ten-minute speeches, by several delegates, for several sections of the country, the substance of whose remarks may be summed up as an appeal for more money and more workers in the organization line. Although the work is in a flourishing condition, it should be pushed more vigorously than it has been.

E. G. Wheeler, of Oregon, spoke for the Pacific slope. There were pressing needs there. As secretary of the district he represented, he was supposed to cover 1,000,000 square miles. Oregon, he said, is larger than New England and four or five other States. It needed aid from those Eastern States able to accord assistance.

In the afternoon the convention split up amicably. The primary workers held a session in Farewell Hall. Routine business occupied the other branch.

An enthusiastic meeting was held tonight, the various speakers receiving much applause, allusions to temperance and the new South being especially well received. During the proceedings it was announced that the executive committee would send a cablegram congratulating Queen Victoria on her jubilee, in recognition of her earnest interest in the advocacy of the Christian religion. "God Save the Queen" was then sung by the audience.

SERVED HIM RIGHT.

A Deserter Shot—Guilty of Three Murders.

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.), June 2.—[By the Associated Press.] Samuel G. Reed was shot by a file of United States soldiers today while attempting to escape on his way to the military camp. Reed was a scion of one of the best families in Alabama. He enlisted as a private soldier, accompanied by a comrade named Williams. He deserted the army and crossed to Matamoras where he killed and robbed a rich jeweler by the name of Block. He and his companion were arrested and condemned to death, but escaped. Reed went to California and Arizona. He slew a couple of men there and finally drifted back to San Antonio, where he was arrested on charge of desertion and turned over to the military. In his death-bed confession Reed admitted his identity as the murderer of Block, which he had strenuously denied. The Government officials attach no blame to the detail.

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.), June 2.—The Gazette's Conway (Ark.) special says: "Information was received today of a terrible affray between three young farmers during a spelling-bee, at a church in Harvey township, fifteen miles from Conway. The parties concerned were Dan and Albert Mahey and Tom Middleton. The latter and Dan Mahey were rivals for the hand of a neighborhood belle. On Saturday night they called Middleton out of church and accused him of lying, seized him and began stabbing him with a knife. During the affray, which emptied the church, several shots were fired, one of which struck Middleton, and another mortally wounded Dan Mahey. Albert Mahey was also seriously shot. Dan died on Monday. Albert has disappeared, and Middleton is reported dying this morning."

It was decided to consider the subject at the next regular meeting. A resolution was unanimously adopted indorsing the action of Secretary Whitney in providing for a naval reserve of merchant seamen.

AN INFAMY.

Vile Orgies at a Dance in a Public Hall.

One of the most disgraceful scenes ever witnessed in this or any other city took place at Merced Hall, near the Pico House, last night. It was a "masked ball," in which drunken prostitutes of both sexes held the floor and made night hideous with their orgies. Not a woman stayed there who was not a strumpet, and there were very few strumpets in town who were not there. A large number of prominent young business men were present, with or without masks, drunk themselves, in happy dalliance with drunken drabs.

One of the members of a well-known and popular hat store skipped around the room with a flashily-dressed girl, whose painted cheeks showed what her calling was. A high-toned fancy dry goods man, who is noted for his standing in fashionable society, was one of the revelers. One of the members of a fashionable tailoring establishment was there in all his glory and was quite a favorite with the frail sisterhood. The confidential clerk of a well-known lumberyard reeled along, holding a half-dressed girl in his arms. A groceryman who is very popular among the heads of families, seemed to be afraid that he would not have time to dance with every soiled dove in the room. The son of one of the county officials was there with his mistress. A well-known doctor, dressed in the latest style, danced around the room with a white plug hat on the back of his head. One of the most popular hotel clerks in the city was there, and seemed to have forgotten that such a thing as respectability ever existed. A prominent Democratic sack-holder, of the Second Ward, was the "biggest" man in the hall, except the "boss" of one of the infamous houses on Alameda street. A high-toned jeweler seemed to own at least three of the girls. A well-known train-dispatcher occupied a box and entertained the female dancers when they got tired. There were two or three fights in the place before 12 o'clock, and a bar without a license was in full blast all night. The actions of the dancers cannot be described. The owner of the hall was very anxious to have the outrageous place closed up, and telephoned to the police station, but nothing could be done. The parties are largely the same as those who perpetrated a similar, but less brazen infamy, in Turnverein Hall some months ago.

British Yachtsmen Call Her the Fastest Craft That Sails.

Another Sculling Match Arranged Between Hanlan and Gaudaur.

The Race to Take Place July 23d Over the Calumet Lake Course—Hanlan Will Also Row Beach—Events on the Eastern Race-tracks.

By Telegraph to The Times.

LONDON, June 2.—[By Cable and the Associated Press.] The race under the auspices of the New Thames Yacht Club took place today. The course was the same as in yesterday's race, from Tower Hope to the Mouse lighthouse and return, a distance of fifty miles. The start was made at 11:55 a.m., in the following order: Genesta, Sybil, Sleuthhound, Wentur, Thistle, Neptune, Irex and Foxhound. The Genesta and Sybil were called back for going over the line before the gun was fired. At Thames Head the Thistle was well away, followed by the Wentur, Irex, Neptune and Foxhound. From here close-hauled they lay quite down past the Nore. All carried jib foresails, maysail and square-headed topsails, with the exception of the Thistle, which had jib-headed topsails. The Irex, in passing the Wentur, took down her topsails. After getting around the light ship-spinnakers, bigger topsails and jib topsails were set, and all came along home at a tremendous pace, finishing in the following order: Thistle, 4:43; Irex, 4:52; Wentur, 4:59; Neptune, 5:23, and Foxhound, 5:44.

The Thistle turned the Mouse lightship at 2:18, ploughing through a heavy sea with the greatest ease, and simply flying along close-hauled. Today's performance confirms the universal opinion that the Thistle has splendid capacity. Some experienced English yachtsmen say that she is the finest racing yacht afloat. The Wentur takes the first prize. The Thisde, although first in, takes the third place, under the time allowance.

THE OARSMEN.

The fourth race was a walk-over for Jacobin; the other entries were scratched.

For 3-year-olds and upward, seven furlongs—Hornpipe won, Wahoo second, Grey Cloud third. Time, 1:37. Before the start Lady Max received a kick from Wanderer which broke her right hind leg above the knee joint. The judges decided that all bets on Lady Max were off. Her owners will endeavor to save Lady Max for a brood mare.

GRAND CONCERT.

Benefit for the Building Fund of the Y. M. C. A.

The grand concert to be given at the Pavilion June 8th, under the direction of Prof. R. L. Kent, is progressing favorably. The services of Mrs. W. E. Beeson and Miss Belle Pendleton, sopranos; Miss Florence Pendleton, alto; J. S. Osgood, of Boston, tenor; and Albert Hawthorne, bass; Miss Lizzie Heine, violin; and H. C. Alger, saxophone, have been secured, assuring an enjoyable evening. Prof. Henry Ludlam, of the National School of Oratory, Philadelphia, will also contribute valuable assistance as elocutionist. The Normal School chorus, comprising 200 voices, assisted by fifty of our leading musicians, have been thoroughly trained by Prof. Kent, and will render Rossini's "Carnovale" in fine style. Another feature of the programme will be the first appearance of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, under the direction of Louis Heine. A flute trio, by Messrs. Heine, Mead and Harris will be an oddity and a choice number of the evening. The readiness with which the public has already responded is an indication of the general interest felt in this undertaking, whereby one more feature will be added to the attractiveness of Los Angeles. Every arrangement has been made for the pleasure and comfort of the audience at the Pavilion.

New Blocks.

The old Chinese wash-house on Spring street, between Third and Fourth, is being pulled down to make way for a three-story brick, to be erected by L. Harris, who has taken a lease of the ground from Mr. Salisbury, its owner. The cottage next to Hall's grocery, on Spring street near Fifth, is being moved, and Mrs. Barker, who recently purchased the site, will erect a business house there.

An Impudent Cow.

People's Store.

Our first specialty for today, which has been exhibited in our center window, which could have been sold and cleaned out the first half hour after they were placed therein, an elegant line of ponges at 20c at the ridiculously low price of 25c. a yard; these goods need no praise at our hands. The values are superb. We will not promise to show these goods after 11 o'clock, for we fear that they will all be gone at that time.

Our second specialty for today, which has been exhibited in our window, a handsome line of boxed lawn suits, being ten yards of material and nine yards of embroidery, one quality at $1.25, well worth $2.50, and the other at $1.75, which connoisseurs have pronounced cheap at $3.

Our third for today will be all our dress prints, irrespective of price, at 5c. a yard.

Our fourth specialty for today is a line of pure flaxen table linen at 25c., worth 45c. We had a peep at these goods and can promise that the value will be far above your expectation, the fabric being firm, durable and wear-resisting.

Our fifth specialty for today is a broken line of summer silks, consisting of various qualities, all at the uniform price of 33½c., worth 50c. and 65c.

Sixth, a line of self-striped cashmeres in brown, blue, gray and black, at 25c. This fabric is 38-inches wide, and of material that is soft and pleasing to the touch. Goods that will make up into handsome garments; regular price, 30c.

Our seventh will be double-width bed-sheeting, at 15c. a yard. This goods is pure bleached, and wide enough for the widest double bed.

Our eighth is a line of black silk gloves, at 25c. a pair. Those in the habit of wearing this glove are aware that they are worth 50c. a pair.

Our ninth is a line of zephyr wool shawls, at 75c. each, in colors of cardinal, white, blue and black. This shawl is made of heavy wool, and not of the light flimsy fabric that one would be led to believe from the price. Goods that are worth $1.25.

Our tenth is a line of ladies' laced Oxford tie shoes at 98c. a pair. These goods are worth $1.50.

Small bottles of Florida water today at 10c. a bottle, worth 25c. Large cakes, perfumed soap, at 5c. each, worth 15c. All our Swiss embroidery for yokes and sleeves, 50c. a yard, worth $1. People's Store.

Money Is No Object.

The lives of your children are of priceless value. Every child is subject to sudden attacks of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is always alarming and often fatal. The only rational plan is to be provided at all times with the safest and surest remedy, and promptly treat the disorder in its first stages, and before the vitality becomes exhausted. Unexpected delays so often occur in sending for a physician or medicine, especially during the night or from a distance, that no one can afford to risk such uncertainties when life depends upon promptness. Keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy at hand for instant use. It is made for bowel complaint only and is unquestionably the most reliable medicine ever brought into general use. The price is no object compared with its value in saving life. Sold by C. H. Hance, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

For fear of losing a day's work, many persons put off taking physic until Saturday. The better plan is to not delay, but take it as soon as needed; it may save you a hard spell of sickness. If you want the most benefit from the least amount of physic, without causing you any inconvenience, loss of appetite or rest, take St. Patrick's Pills. Their action on the liver and bowels are thorough. They give a freshness, tone and vigor to the whole system, and act in harmony with nature. Sold by C. H. Hance, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

TERMS O' ... ENERALS.

...DGES OF SHERMAN, SHER... AN AND ROSECRANS.

...rans Describes His Removal from ... Army of the Cumberland—Sheri... as a Presiding Officer—A Chat with Sculptor Ward.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, May 20.

The noted generals of the army are fast passing away, and we will soon have no more such reunions as that of the Army of the Cumberland which took place here last week. There is scarcely a noted general now living whose hair is not gray. Logan, Hancock, McClellan and Grant have died within two years, and the wrinkles are fast creeping around the eyes of Gen. Sherman. Sherman's hair is still brown, however, though his high forehead is fading off into baldness and his short red beard is as white as snow. I watched him closely as he spoke to the soldiers, and he is the same blunt, talented Tecumseh that he was in the early sixties. He stood upon the platform part of the time, with one hand in his pocket, and, awkwardly as he gestured, he seemed perfectly at home. He is nearly as tall as his brother John, who sat behind him, and he is, like all his tribe, a good speech maker. Slender, plainly dressed, with a high Henry Clay collar and a plain face showing out above it, his blue eyes sparkled with good feeling as he talked, and he looked, as he is, in full sympathy with the world. No man in the United States enjoys life better than William Tecumseh Sherman. There is no age in his feelings, and he is as warm hearted and impulsive now as a boy. He likes to kiss a pretty girl as well as when he was courting the daughter of Tom Ewing, then secretary of the interior under President Taylor. He would not have the presidency if it were offered him, and he has characterized White House life as worse than the darkest pictures of Dante's Inferno.

Gen. Rosecrans, though older than Sherman, is also young in appearance. His face shines with good humor and he looks like a fat, stumpy, gray headed boy as he moves about Washington dressed in the most common of business clothes, and paying no regard to personal appearance. There is no snobbishness about Rosecrans, and he is hail fellow well met with every one. He is 68 years old, and is a much younger looking man than Senator Edmunds, who is a full ten years younger. Rosecrans is, however, a queer combination. He was a brave officer and he made a good reputation in congress, but he has never gotten over his removal from the command of the army of the Cumberland, and one of the most pathetic sights of the reunion was his explanation to his old troops as to how his removal took place. He told the boys how Thomas had not, as was stated by a late book published on the subject, thought himself superior to Rosecrans, and how Gen. Garfield had told him at the request of Thomas that he, Thomas, would not serve in the army of the Cumberland under any other commander than him, and that he was perfectly satisfied to have him as his chief. Rosecrans described the scene in the tent at Chattanooga when he received his dispatch relieving him of his command and when he announced the fact to Thomas. His story has not been published in the newspapers, but it was to my mind the most interesting part of the meeting. "It was at night" said he, "that I received the order, and I sent for Gen. Thomas. He came alone to the tent and took his seat. I handed him the letter. He read it, and as he did so his breast began to swell and he turned pale. He did not want to accept the command, but we agreed upon consideration that he must do so, and I told him that I could not bear to meet my troops afterward. 'I want to leave,' said I, 'before the announcement is made, and I will start in the early morning.' I packed up that night, and the next morning about 2 o'clock I rode away through the fog which then hung over the camp. The best of relations prevailed ... I had a chat with J. Q. A. Ward while he was here attending the unveiling of his statue of Garfield. The sculptor is a straight, well built, business like looking man of 50, with light, sandy hair, and a full, short, reddish beard, into which the silver threads are fast creeping. He talks in a business like manner, wears eye glasses, and has nothing of the Bohemian about him. He is one of the successful American sculptors of to-day. Born in Ohio he early turned his attention to art, and he was already a sculptor when Garfield was a member of the state senate of Ohio. He told me of a curious incident in connection with his first meeting of Garfield. It occurred in Governor Dennison's office. Ward was talking to the governor when a blonde young man with Saxon features entered, and Governor Dennison introduced him to Ward as Senator Garfield. In Dennison's happy way he said:

"Mr. Garfield, you are a rising young statesman, and Ward is a rising young sculptor; I present you to each other, and it may be that when you, Garfield, have won your laurels and become famous, you may call upon Ward, who will by this time have made his reputation, to embody you in marble or in bronze."

The years passed on. Both went their ways and both turned out as Dennison predicted. Garfield became president of the United States and Ward makes his most noted statue.

Mr. Ward knew Garfield somewhat in after years, and he tells me that Garfield had an extraordinary knowledge and appreciation of art. He described a conversation which he had held with Garfield during the celebration of the unveiling of Ward's statue of Gen. Thomas. In this conversation Garfield thoroughly appreciated the symbolic in art, and said he thought it an impossibility to make a really great statue of a man with the use of modern clothes. The figures about the base of Ward's statue are symbolic, and in the faces of the student, the soldier, and the statesman there has been no attempt to reproduce Garfield. They merely stand for the phases of his life and character which they represent. They are wonderful creations, and they will long form the chief features of the statuary art of the capital city.

I asked Ward for the story of this statue. He replied: "I was given the commission for it in 1880 at Cincinnati. Gen. Corbin called upon me, and told me that the Army of the Cumberland had collected $50,000 for a statue of Garfield, and they wanted me to take the commission for it. I replied that the amount was too much for an ordinary statue, and that I would like to take some time to think about it. I did think about it, and the result was the present statue. It was much more elaborate than that which Gen. Corbin and the committee had expected, and I found that it would cost about $60,000. I called upon them and told them that if they would add $10,000 to the $50,000 already raised I could make it. They were pleased with the idea. They at once raised the money, and accepted it. The statue was cast in New York."

"Can our bronze foundries do as good work as those of Europe?"

"Every bit as good. America is rapidly growing in artistic taste and artistic workmanship, and the Americans have a wonderful power of adaptability. We bring foreign hands into our art manufactories, and the Americans learn very ... from them."

"Are you satisfied with the growth of art taste in America?"

"Yes, it is wonderful. It surpasses all the prophecies. When I came to New York years ago, at the meetings of our art clubs, N. P. Willis, William Cullen Bryant and others used to prophecy a great art development in the United States. We thought them rather visionary then, but the reality surpasses their statements. All over the country this growth of art taste is going on. The Centennial helped it. It is being fostered by the numbers of tourists who visit Europe every year, and by the wealthy men who bring back works of art with them. Americans have, I think, great latent art tastes. These develop rapidly upon cultivation, and our average citizen soon gains a very fair artistic judgment."

"How about the products of American art?"

"We are doing some very good work in a number of different directions. Bohemianism is fast leaving the profession, and there is more money in art now than in the past. No artist makes a fortune, but many make good livings. The branches of art work are widening, and there is an increased demand for skill in our potteries, in our bronze foundries, in the designing of papers and the other things which go to make the house beautiful. Those who cannot make a great success in the higher branches of art find an opening here."

"Do you think America will ever have a distinctive national art?"

"Yes; I have no doubt of it. If I thought we would not I would not care to continue my work six months. We are yet in our infancy, but we are growing very fast. The American character is an original one, and it is full of inventions. The patent office shows this. As we grow wealthier and get out of our hard working bread and butter ways our tastes will become more highly cultivated, and after we have served an apprenticeship in the art schools of the world we will develop something of a national character. I hope some time to see a national academy of art at Washington, and it may be that the National museum is the foundation of this, or the Corcoran art gallery might be developed by the aid of congress into something of this kind." FRANK G. CARPENTER.

Decay of Romance in the Latter Days.

[Williamsport Grit.]

"There is, after all, a deplorable lack of romance in this progressive age of ours," said a gentleman in one of our jewelry stores yesterday. "In days gone by the betrothal ring was considered as a sort of love token, and the maiden who received it wore it and doted upon it because of the spirit in which it was given. Now, however, the girls are very particular, and it is no unusual thing for them to come here with their engagements and have the settings changed, and alterations made in the inscription, or some other little matter that don't just suit them corrected. And the wedding ring is no longer held so sacred as it used to be. Why, do you know it has not been long since a prospective bride came in alone and selected her own wedding ring, had it fitted to her finger, left the order for the engraving to go within the band, and then had the cost charged to her fiancé. Now that sort of thing is calculated to knock romance higher than a kite."

BUSINESS.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES, LOS ANGELES, Thursday, June 2.

The Wheat market has been active and irregular of late. San Francisco advices report buyer season especially erratic. The general tendency of the market has been upward, and the recent hot winds and consequent damage to the crop in many sections tend to advance prices independently of the efforts of speculating cliques to force up the market both on this coast and in the East.

The local markets for Country Produce are generally lower. Potatoes especially are fairly plentiful at reduced rates. The demand, however, from the East will probably prevent prices from declining much farther.

The latest report from the Chicago market for California products is as follows:

CHICAGO, June 2.—California Dried Fruits are steady and firm, and in rather light supply at the following figures: Plums, pitted, per pound, 11@12c.; Raisins, London layers, twenty-pound boxes, per box, $1.50@1.75; Raisins, loose Muscatel, per box, $1.25@1.35; Raisins, California layers, per box, $1.35@1.35; California Apricots, in twenty-pound boxes, are selling in a small way at $2.50@2.75 per box. Cherries are quiet, and offerings are only moderate, but the demand is also light. Sour Cherries in twenty-four-quart cases are quotable at about $2 when good, but very small or pecked ones are dull and not salable for over about $1.50@1.75. White Sweet range at $2@3 for twenty-four-quart cases, according to quality. California ten-pound boxes sold at $1.50@1.75 for Black Tartarians, and at $2@2.25 for White. Those prices are for choice and sound fruit. Some are in so poor and leaking a condition as to be hardly salable. Lemons were selling moderately, and range at $3.50@4 per box for Messina, and $2.50 for California. Oranges were selling at just about last week's closing prices. The supply is fair. California Bright Riverside, good to fancy, $3.25@4; San Bernardino, $3.25@4; Santa Ana, $2.90@3.25; St. Michael, paper rind, $3@3.75; Orange, $2.50@2.75; Los Angeles, $2.50@2.75; Navel, according to quality, $3@4.50; San Gabriel, $2.50@3; Blood Oranges, fancy, $4@6; culls, $2.

Stocks and Bonds.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Money on call, easy, at 4@6; last loan, 4; closed at 5 offered.

Prime mercantile paper, 5@6.

Sterling exchange, dull and steady at $4.85¼ for 60-days bills; $4.86½ for demand.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The stock market today, in absence of any special support and on the realizations of operators, who have grown tired of carrying their load without any material advance, was raided by bears at every weak point. The decline was not continuous, but on an open removal of pressure, at different intervals, slight recoveries were made. This gave a feverish and unsettled appearance to the market, which was retained to the close. News of the day was unimportant, but such as it was, was a tendency to depress values. Pacific Mail became a special feature, and its price was depressed 3 per cent. at one time, but Fort Worth and Denver, without any special pressure or activity, recorded the heaviest decline for the day. The entire list shared in the decline. Among specialties prominent for weakness were San Francisco preferred and Marshall and Colorado. The close was quiet and about firm, dull, good and steady.

HYDE PARK!

Look where you will in the vicinity of the city of Los Angeles, in search either of lots or acre property, for charming homes, and the best judgments will be convinced at a glance as to the difficulty of finding a location for a town so beautiful, such pure and bracing air, and smooth, rich lands as characterizes Hyde Park. This splendid townsite is located on the line of the California Central, of the A., T. & S. F. system, which is to connect Los Angeles with the new harbor at La Ballona, and is distant 7½ miles from the center of the city; a midway town between the city and the harbor. Trains are to be running through the tract by July next, when great business activity all along the line will be the order of the day. Liberal-sized lots, 60x189 feet, fronting on sixty-foot avenues, are offered and being taken rapidly at $100 each; $40 cash, balance $10 per month, without interest. Such terms give the present purchasers a good opportunity to make money in the rising values that must follow the effects of the harbor and railroad developments. Particularly desirable are the 5 and 10 acre villa lots surrounding the town. Conveyances leave the office at 1:30 p.m., to show parties the beautiful property.

Perfect and Improved High-Arm Sewing

This machine is the first of its kind ever offered the public at factory prices, and bought from agents for less than the regular selling price, $75. It is the high-arm self-setting needle; cannot be run backward; has automatic cut-off for drawing bobbin; prevents it from being run backward, thus avoiding all dangers of breaking thread or needle; is a noiseless, light-running machine, accompanied by an illustrated book of instructions that makes everything so plain and simple that any lady or child can master it. We call it THE MIRROR HIGH-ARM SEWING MACHINE, and we warrant it to give full and entire satisfaction in every case, or it may be returned to us within ten days after the subscriber has received the same, if it fails to be as respresented, at our expense, and the money will be refunded.

The above cut represents our HIGH-ARM MIRROR SEWING MACHINE, the most improved machine of the high-arm style; a complete embodiment of all the most modern improvements in sewing machine mechanism; a model selected by us after a careful and critical examination and test of the various machines in the market.

Having arranged with the manufacturers to supply us with these machines in large quantities for spot cash at or very near first cost, we can save our subscribers at least $25 on the price of each machine. As this is the first time a sewing machine of this character has been offered to the public at about manufacturer's cost, we feel confident our readers will promptly take advantage of this opportunity to provide themselves with first-class high-arm machine, such as obtained in any other way would cost them almost three times the amount.

We could fill several columns expatiating on the merits of this high-arm machine, but to save the reader's patience we will simply

THE MONTH.

...Y VERY BADLY BEATS ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS.

...al-estate Sales Over Eight Millions of Dollars—Four Times as Big as Last Year—Postoffice and Steamer Figures.

In accordance with its custom—a custom fully appreciated by the business public and by all who are interested in the growth of Los Angeles—THE TIMES presents this morning a review of the month of May, showing not only the relative but also the comparative business of the month. It beats all previous records by a very large majority.

REAL ESTATE.

May Makes an Unprecedented Showing.

THE TIMES has frequently called attention to the steady gain in real-estate transactions in this county during the past year. This gain has mounted by remarkably even steps, almost like a sum in arithmetical progression. April was the biggest month on record, and fell short of Kansas City's average by only a few hundred thousand dollars. May went almost a million dollars better and beats the record of Kansas City, or the boomingest town in the country. The number of transfers recorded is also over 2000 in excess of any previous month in the county's history. The following classified summary of the month's recorded transfers by weeks, and the comparative table for the last seven months tell the wonderful story:

For the week ending May 7, there were 109 transfers for a nominal consideration; 240 under $1000, aggregating $118,080; 242 between $1000 and $5000, aggregating $514,443; 59 between $5000 and $10,000, aggregating $395,223; 35 over $10,000, aggregating $983,208; total, 685, aggregating $2,011,451.

In the week ending May 14 there were 76 transfers for a nominal consideration; 300 under $1000, aggregating $94,579; 261 between $1000 and $5000, aggregating $544,913; 54 between $5000 and $10,000 aggregating $378,983; 27 over $10,000, aggregating $830,480; total, 618, aggregating $1,848,954.

In the week ending May 21 there were 116 transfers for a nominal consideration; 28 under $1000, aggregating $124,793; 223 between $1000 and $5000, aggregating $460,333; 44 between $5000 and $10,000, aggregating $304,028; 40 over $10,000, aggregating $1,050,592; total, 704, aggregating $1,945,646.

In the week ending May 28, there were 104 transfers for a nominal consideration; 249 under $1000, aggregating $113,409; 207 between $1000 and $5000, aggregating $613,001; 58 between $5000 and $10,000, aggregating $432,238; 38 over $10,000, aggregating $984,537; total, 719, aggregating $2,111,968.

May 29th and 30th were holidays. May 31st there were 34 transfers for a nominal consideration; 67 under $1000, aggregating $26,224; 55 between $1000 and $5000, aggregating $121,634; 5 between $5000 and $10,000, aggregating $28,950; 5 over $10,000, aggregating $68,500; total, 166, aggregating $245,308.

Totals for May—439 transfers for a nominal consideration; 1037 under $1000, aggregating $477,175; 1051 between $1000 and $5000, aggregating $2,261,013; 220 between $5000 and $10,000, aggregating $1,589,423; 145 over $10,000, aggregating $3,917,317; grand total, 2892 transfers, aggregating $8,163,327.

COMPARISON BY MONTHS.

COLD STORAGE.

A Cleveland Firm Who Strongly Commend It.

CLEVELAND (O.), May 26.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Knowing your paper to be among the leading journals of Southern California, and read by fruit-growers and shippers throughout your State, permit us to tell your readers, who are interested in fruit matters, something which is of the utmost importance to them and to their already great and growing industry, and which we feel confident cannot fail to interest them. For the three years past, or since your people have sought eastern markets for the shipment of their citrus and deciduous fruits, we have had more or less experience in the handling of the same, and have watched the inception and growth of this new industry with the utmost interest, knowing and feeling that could certain obstacles be overcome in the matter of lack of ventilation while in transit, the great problem would be solved, and this, among the greatest of your industries, would be placed upon a sure and much more satisfactory basis. The market in the East, for your unrivaled fruit products, we must say, has in no wise proved a brilliant success financially, or otherwise, owing to the certainty of heavy loss in all citrus and deciduous fruit shipments, resulting from overheating while in transit.

From our experience lately, we feel certain that a new era has dawned upon your people. We have just received a consignment of a carload of oranges from the well-known packing-house of A. J. & D. C. Twogood, of Riverside, treated by the new cooling process as practiced by the Interocean Cold Storage Company of that city, and coming through the heated, burning desert of the plains, for nearly three thousand miles, as it did, we have the satisfaction of saying that the fruit arrived here in the most complete and perfect order of anything we have ever known to come from your State. Indeed we might say the fruit arrived here almost perfectly sound. From our experience heretofore we regard this as a remarkable achievement, and we take special pleasure in recommending this new process to the people of your State, and believe its general adoption will be the means of saving large sums of money to the fruit industries of California annually. We are very truly yours,

T. W. EVANS & Co.,
Fruit commission merchants, Cleveland, Ohio.

G. A. R. Encampment.

Last year the national gathering of the Grand Army of the Republic was held at San Francisco, and California outdid all former like occasions, and entertained the comrades in a truly royal manner. This year the grand encampment is held at St. Louis. Arrangements for a large attendance have already been made, and a larger sum of money has been secured than ever before for the occasion. Los Angeles and Southern California intend to be there in good style. A movement is already begun looking toward a large excursion and the proper showing up of our booming country.

Did His Errand.

Sheriff Kays got back from Oakland yesterday, having safely turned over to the Superior Court of Alameda county his little charge, Kathleen Boothe, as commanded by the Supreme Court. Mrs. Boothe did not go up with him and the child; but Albert Jenks, Mrs. Boothe's father did. Arriving at San Francisco, Sheriff Kays dodged two news-thirsty reporters cleverly, and got the child into court uninterviewed. The Court was going to hold him up there a week to keep the custody of the child until the case should be settled, but he managed to get away after considerable maneuvering.

Overloaded Teams.

A dray of the California Truck Company, loaded with about five tons of nails, etc., and drawn by but two horses, got stuck yesterday in attempting to come up the grade on Commercial street, between Los Angeles and Main. A considerable crowd watched the struggles of the two fine horses to haul the enormous load until the driver gave it up and backed down again to Los Angeles street. A bystander said: "These transfer companies are fighting hard, and are hauling heavy freight at 20 to 35 cents a ton. At such figures they have to overload to get any returns at all."

A Slow Job.

The people of the East Side, who chipped in $7000 out of their own pockets to help the city build the Buena Vista-street bridge, want to know why it is that the work is not done, and that only about two cartloads of dirt a day are being hauled to fill in the east approach. The bridge was contracted to be completed in February, and the contractors were under bonds to finish it then; but they did not finish it until the month of May, and the bridge cannot be used even now, since the approaches are not done. The East Siders are very wroth about the dilly-dallying.

Knew a Fat Thing When He Had It.

L. L. Bradbury's superb residence on the hill is a familiar object to every one. Mr. Bradbury has been annoyed at the long-windedness of the plumber, who seemed liable never to get through. Yesterday Mr. B. said to the lingerer, sarcastically. "I'll go into mourning when you get out of here."

The plumber was equal to the occasion, and replied with delicious earnestness: "Well, I'll go into mourning when I have to get out of here."

Santa Monica's Day.

Yesterday's excursion to Santa Monica, and auction sale of lots there, was a success. Ten carloads of people went down from this city. Ben E. Ward put the crowd in a good humor, as he usually does. About 100 lots and some acre property were sold, the aggregate sales amounting to over $20,000. The ladies of Santa Monica furnished a royal lunch.

Dry Sparkling.

W. P. Treadwell brought suit against the Dry Sparkling Champagne Company on Wednesday for $122.33, alleged to be due him for services rendered, and sued out an attachment, which was levied on the office furniture of the company to secure the payment of the debt if possible.

Bell's Bill.

The laughable trial of the case in which Horace Bell sued Louis Mesmer for $150 alleged to be due for "advertising" in the Porcupine, was reported exclusively in THE TIMES. Justice Taney took the case under advisement, and yesterday gave judgment for plaintiff in $150.

Sidewalks.

A cement walk has been laid in front of the Fort-street Methodist Church; and Trinity M.E. Church (South), on the same street, not to be outdone in good works, is smoothing the way for its people by following the commendable example.

MASTER MACKENZIE

IN THE TOILS FOR ALLEGED ROBBERY OF THE MAILS.

The United States Officials on the Trail of That Stolen Registered Package—Mackenzie Arrested—His Many Mashes—Out on Bail.

Bert Mackenzie, the young postoffice clerk who has been under the eagle eye of United States District Attorney Brooks since that officer's return from San Diego, has put his foot in Uncle Sam's mail-bag in rather an awkward manner, or luck is against him. While Brooks was in San Diego looking after the smugglers he received orders from the department to return, as several robberies had taken place in the Los Angeles postoffice. On his return he found the case in the hands of John O. Culvert, special postoffice inspector for the Pacific coast. The detective set several traps for the thief or thieves, but they failed to bite, and night before last they made up their minds to run a bold game of bluff. Young Mackenzie was taken in charge by the United States Marshal and kept at the St. Elmo Hotel over night. The officers were in hopes that he would make a full confession, but he did not, and yesterday morning he was formally arrested and taken before United States Commissioner Van Dyke. He was charged with having taken for his own use a package addressed to a party in Santa Monica, valued at $40. He pleaded not guilty, and demanded an examination at once. The Government officials, with a flourish of trumpets, announced that they were ready. Mackenzie was represented by Hon. Stephen M. White, and the Government by United States District Attorney J. Marion Brooks. The first witness called for the Government was who testified: I am special inspector of postoffices for the Pacific coast and territories, and have been for the past five years. I had a conversation with Bert Mackenzie, and he said: "I received and dispatched a registered letter addressed to Mrs. Adams, of Santa Monica. I was in charge of the mail-bags or pouches fifteen minutes before they left. I know that no one else could have taken the letter or package out of the pouch, because I took it up and placed the register in it. If it was stolen, either myself or the postmistress at Santa Monica did it. It could not have been done otherwise. The postoffice clerks at this office had no opportunity to take it from the sack. I saw it in the sack, locked it up and dispatched it to Santa Monica. The postmistress at Santa Monica or myself are the only ones guilty of the crime."

The prosecution did not place another witness on the stand, and the case was postponed until tomorrow. Mackenzie's bail was fixed at $5000, and justified with A. E. Pomeroy and L. C. Dessaint as sureties.

The peculiar part of the case has not been told yet. It seems that Mackenzie is a dudish young man and foad of the young ladies. The officers who have looked up his record say they have discovered that his great desire in life is to marry a rich girl. Several years ago he paid some attention to a young lady in this city, and was about to capture her family by representing that he was a big man in postoffice circles, and had keys which would open any of the pouches or mail sacks. He was not even employed in any business in those days, and a near relative of the girl's broke the thing off by digging up his history and showing it to the girl's parents. During this flirtation they claim that he made away with several articles that he borrowed from the near relative above mentioned, and secured credit by representing that he was the wealthy girl's husband. From this flirtation they traced him down through several other little love affairs to the present time. They claim that Mackenzie has been in love with a very beautiful young lady at Santa Monica, whose parents are quite wealthy. His spruce form could be seen almost any Sunday afternoon on the beach, with the confiding young creature by his side. The girl has learned to love him, and the old folks, it is said, have been induced to stand in, for the reason that the dashing young postoffice clerk has convinced them that he is one of Uncle Sam's special secret-service agents. When Bert could not be with his fair inamorata, whispering sweet nothings in her left ear, he spent his time in writing her "goo-goo" letters and all that kind of thing. These letters have told more tales than the tale of love—or the officers think they have. As soon as the officers began to shadow him his letters to the fair one by the ocean became more numerous, and the detectives suspected that something was wrong, and claim to have captured one or two letters that will make it go very hard with the young man next Saturday. One of them, in particular, is quite suspicious if it has reference to the particular package that has kicked up the trouble. Mackenzie, on the other hand, is positive that he will be able to clear his skirts and come out with flying colors. And so say his friends, who are many.

CATARRH!

THROAT DISEASES, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,

CONSUMPTION,

Together with diseases of the

Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.,

M. C. P., S. O.,

No. 275 North Main Street,

A few doors south of the new postoffice, Los Angeles, Cal.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by

DR. WILLIAMS,

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and oet he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years, and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts that he will "by-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.

Inhalations are applicable in all diseases of the respiratory organs, but must be prepared for each individual case as they severally require.

By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharnyx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.

The very best references from those already cured.
